

SAYS GUFFEY USED BOSCH SALE FUNDS FOR HIMSELF

Investigator Storck Testifies Pennsylvania Democratic Leader, Former Alien Property Sales Director, Took Up a Personal Loan.

"$398,000 SHORTAGE WAS MADE GOOD"

"I Indicted Him but Nothing Was Done;" Payment Made to Treasury; Witness Tells Senators Sale Funds Were Held.

By PAUL V. ANDERSON.

A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Two former Attorneys-General, Palmer and Daugherty, were put in the same boat today by the testimony of George W. Storck, Department of Justice investigator, in describing the seizure and subsequent disposition of the German-owned Bosch Magneto Co. He charged that the sale of the company was marked by fraud, made possible by Palmer's actions, and that when the evidence was called to Daugherty's attention, under the present administration, he failed to take any action.

Senator Wheeler, his face somewhat drawn, but smiling more affably than usual, made several references to his indictment in Montana yesterday. There is nothing peculiar in the reference which Chairman Brookhart made to it, speaking with a vehemence and agitation totally foreign to his usual sluggish good humor, he opening the hearing with this announcement:

"In reply to suggestions that what has happened will end the work of this committee, I want to say that there will be no interruption, and I can add that this investigation will go forward now with force and a determination which has never possessed before." Sustained handclapping greeted the announcement.

Yesterday, thrusting at the charges made by Daugherty's friends against many of the witnesses who have testified, Wheeler frontally asked Storck if he was a friend, or a close friend, or whether he had ever been indicted. Today, with a broad smile, he remarked to Storck: "I asked you yesterday if you had ever been indicted. I see by the morning papers that I have been, while the worst charged against you is that Mr. DuPont says you are irresponsible, so I guess you're better off than I am."

Again, after Storck had testified that he recommended prosecution in the Bosch-Magneto case five years ago, but that none had ever been brought, Wheeler retorted: "Yes, they've been too busy to get indictments against those people, but they had time to go out to Montana and frame up an indictment against me since this investigation began."

Storck charged that Martin E. Kern, an enemy alien, and an ex-convict, induced A. Mitchell Palmer, then alien property custodian, to seize the German-owned property of the Bosch-Magneto Co. It was later sold to a company headed by Kern, and Storck testified that Kern and his associates made more than a million dollars out of the transaction, "without investing a red cent." It was brought out that Palmer had previously been Kern's attorney before becoming a Government official.

The Bosch-Magneto Co. was sold by Joseph S. Guffey, chairman of the Democratic committee of Pennsylvania, who was made director of sales for the alien property office. Storck testified that the price represented about 62 per cent of the value of the property.

He charged Guffey, moreover, with converting receipts for the sale of alien property to his own use, for long periods of time, when the money should have been in the treasury. On occasion he paid a large personal loan with the cash he was found to have a shortage of $401,000, but was permitted to repay it.

"You reported this man guilty of embezzlement and other crimes and recommended his indictment," he asked Wheeler. "Yes, Sir, and he was indicted."

"And what has become of that case?" "Nothing." In January of this year Attorney-General Daugherty sent a memorandum down to the Department attorney in charge of the case, to which was attached an indictment against Daugherty asking that the case be handled promptly. That is the last I have heard of it."

Storck identified Kern's Berlin record, furnished by the New York authorities. It showed that

Insurgent Senator Has Big Lead Over Administration Man

—Bryan Victor.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., April 9.—Nebraska is in the column of states favoring President Calvin Coolidge for the Republican nomination. It was indicated by unofficial returns today from 811 precincts out of 1938 in the state, representing every county except three.

These returns gave him 45,892 votes, compared to 23,562 for Senator Hiram Johnson of California, his only opponent.

Senator George W. Norris, Republican, of the Independent type, whose friends charged that "Eastern politicians" and "muckrakers" were out to defeat him, apparently won the contest by a substantial plurality over former Representative Charles Sloan of Geneva, regarded as an administration man. The Senator had 32,764 votes to Sloan's 13,049 in 192 precincts.

Norris had planned to retire from the Senate with the expiration of his present term, but his friends forced him to consent to accept the nomination.

He made no campaign, refusing to leave Washington for the purpose.

In the Democratic Senatorial race, John J. Thomas was maintaining a slim but steady lead in virtually all sections.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan was renominated as the Democratic candidate for the governorship, but his Republican opponent was an uncertain matter because of the closeness of the contest.

Adam McMullen of Beatrice, banker and lawyer, was leading A. N. Mathers of Gering by 6,552 votes.

Charles Gaff, president of the State Board of Agriculture, was decisively defeated by Gov. Bryan, the vote from 690 precincts being 27,792 for Bryan and 7,559 for Gaff. Bryan also apparently won 14 counties for which Republican party's candidate for Governor, Edward Saghrouh of Indiana.

Candidates who sought nomination on beer and light wine platforms were defeated.

Apparently all Democratic and Republican incumbents in the national house were renominated.

Democratic voters, having no regularly filed candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination on their ballots, wrote in names of their choice.

Party leaders had agreed that an instructed delegation should be sent to New York. Only 220 precincts had reported overnight, and among them were three Republicans, President Coolidge, who received two votes in Grant County; Senator Borah, who was given an equal number in Dawes County; and Senator La Follette, for whom 11 Democrats in two counties expressed a preference. Henry Ford received 145 votes. Among the party leaders, McAdoo received the most support, having 1,647 votes in 220 precincts. Next were Gov. Charles W. Bryan with 130 votes and Gov. Al Smith with 160.

Former Senator Bruce, James Cox, Ham Jennings, Bryan, James Cox, the party's candidate in 1920, Senators Walsh of Montana and Underwood of Alabama, and several State leaders received a few scattered votes.

Jack L. Hanson, Republican national committee member of Oklahoma, told him he had "signed the check" that resulted in the nomination of W. G. Harding. This conversation took place after the Chicago convention, August 1920.

Hanson saying he would give $1,000,000 if necessary to put Oklahoma in the Republican column in the general election.

William H. Miller of Columbus, Ohio, testified that he assisted in Harding's pre-convention campaign, visiting the Northwestern states. He first met Hanson at Harding's headquarters at Indianapolis before the convention and later saw him at the Chicago convention.

"I had no part in the collection or disbursement of funds," Miller testified. "I saw the money in the hands of J. B. French, of Oklahoma City," testified Monday that $25,000 to Miller to pay the headquarters expense of the Harding committee at Chicago.

There was no discussion of oil lands or leases at either of his meetings with Hanson, Miller said. Hanson told him at the Indianapolis meeting that he was for Harding, he said, but had added relative of Harding and was not portending him to support Harding. The witness then denied specifically that Hanson had given him $25,000.

NORRIS AND COOLIDGE NEW FEAT IN CABLE NEWS TRANSMISSION

WIN IN NEBRASKA

Insurgent Senator Has Big Lead Over Administration Man

—Bryan Victor.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., April 9.—In transmitting the report of the committee of experts of the Reparations Commission of about 14,000 words, a feat unparalleled in transoceanic communication, was accomplished yesterday by the Western Union Telegraph Co., according to the New York Cable News Service.

Not only was the largest single dispatch ever received, traffic officers said, but it was the first time an ocean cable was operated directly into a newspaper or news association office. Four such direct cables were used in speeding up the delivery in order that the full text of the report might be available simultaneously to the United States and Europe.

The interest in the sinking fund on the mortgage, they figure, representing less than 3 per cent on the entire capital value of 25,000,000 gold marks. Full interest will not be required during the period of reorganization, but the payment of 250,000,000 marks will be asked in 1924 and 1925, increasing on a sliding scale to 650,000,000 in 1927 and 1928, when the experts think ought to become normal.

German industry under the plan is expected to provide 1,000,000 gold marks, represented by first mortgage bonds bearing the first rate of interest as the railroad explain. In this amount, the experts explain, is less than the total debt of the industrial undertakings in Germany before the war.

The interest on these bonds will be paid on a progressive scale, beginning the second year with 2 1/2 per cent, 3 per cent the third year and 5 per cent, plus 1 per cent sinking fund, the fourth year. In the event of default in the payment of the interest, the sinking fund of 1,000,000 marks will be required, upon either railroad or industrial bonds, provision is made for the recovery of the deficiency from the German Government.

Summarizing the proceeds from the provisions in the plan for the first year, the experts estimate that they will produce 1,000,000,000 marks the first year, 1,250,000,000 the second year, 1,450,000,000 the third year, 2,000,000,000 the fourth year, and 2,500,000,000 the fifth year, the maximum payment to be required from Germany annually, the fifth year, and thereafter.

German Capital Abroad.

Reginald McKenna and his colleagues on the second committee find that the Germans have 6,750,000,000 gold marks abroad and that all this sum represents purchases of paper marks at a dead weight of a million of foreigners.

These marks are to be used for the purchase of goods and services, and so long as this return is forthcoming we do not anticipate any interference in the German management of the undertaking.

The railways are to be managed by a board of 18 directors, of whom nine will be chosen by the German Government and the private holders of the shares, and the other nine will be named by the trustee of the bonds to be issued amounting to 11,000,000,000 gold marks, five of whom may be Germans.

Regarding contributions from the various German industries, the report says: "The committee has been impressed with the fairness and desirability of requiring as a contribution to reparation payments from German industry a sum of not less than 3,000,000,000 marks, to be represented by first mortgage bonds bearing 5 per cent interest and 1 per cent sinking fund per annum."

It is pointed out that the industrial concerns have profited in many ways through the depreciation of the mark, such as the long delayed payment of taxes by subsidies granted and advances made by the German Government and by the depreciation of emergency money which they issued. Notwithstanding some losses incurred by these industrial concerns, the committee feels that the burden imposed by the plan is not too great for them to bear.

Provision for Payment.

The provision contemplated by the committee for treaty payments is as follows:

"Budget" moratorium, period: First year from foreign loan and interest (200,000,000) on railway bonds, a total of 1,000,000,000 gold marks. Second year, interest on railway bonds (including 13,000,000 from first year) and interest on industrial debentures and budget contributions, including the sale of 200,000,000 gold marks, a total of 1,200,000,000 gold marks.

"Transition period: Third year, interest on railway bonds and industrial debentures, from transport tax and from budget, a total of 200,000,000 gold marks, subject to contingent addition or reduction not exceeding 250,000,000 gold marks.

"Fourth year: Fifth year from interest on railway bonds and industrial debentures, from transport tax and from budget, a total of 2,500,000,000 gold marks."

With a view to making certain that only one Germany meet her payments, but that the possible surplus is actually established, the report says: "We are convinced that some kind of co-ordinated policy with regard to the exchange rate of the mark is essential to any practical scheme in obtaining the maximum sums from Germany for the benefit of the allies."

"The greater the extent to which payment may be rendered automatic and a matter of habit, and the independent of a fluctuating political attitude toward reparations the less will be the friction and the greater will be the real stability of the German budget. In the last resort the best security is the interest of the German Government and people to accept in good faith a burden which the world is satisfied will be within their capacity and to liquidate as speedily as possible."

Reparations Report of 44,000 Words Carried From Paris to New York.

THOELE TESTIFIES MRS. SAALI WAS PLOT INSTIGATOR

Man Who Got 30 Years for Attempt to Murder Her Husband Would Have Woman Pay.

Ora Thoele had his chance to save Mrs. Angie Saali from prison this afternoon, but his testimony indicated that he wanted her to pay, too, for their love affair that ended in an attempt to take the life of her husband, Peter, by drowning him in a well.

Peter had forgiven and is to appear as a witness in her defense. Not so with Ora Thoele. He looked down at Angie from the stand with story countenance and told a story which had for its burden, "It was her fault I got in trouble. I don't see why I should be the only one to pay."

Dressed in Prison Suit. He was dressed in a prison suit, this lover of Angie's, and wore the prison hair cut. Back from the penitentiary he had come. Those who had thought that his plea of guilty and acceptance of a sentence of 30 years meant that he was willing to shoulder the entire burden, had been mistaken. Ora believed himself a victim of the woman on trial. One could tell that in his scowl, his surliness.

"I knew her about a year," Thoele began. "She used to call me up and ask if she couldn't ride in with me to St. Charles. We got friendly and then she suggested more intimate relations. I agreed. This went on for some time."

Says She Suggested Crime. "One day, about a month before it happened, she said to me, 'Ora, don't you think we ought to do away with my old man?' I didn't say anything. So she asked, 'Why don't you talk about that?' I said, 'I don't want to talk about that.'"

"She kept after me. We were over at Spencer Evans' house one day and she talked to me again. She said this time, 'Don't you think you ought to look after Mr. Saali before Mr. Saali looks after you?' Well, I didn't say much except, 'I don't want to do it.'"

The afternoon of the day we tried to kill Peter (Jan. 26 last) she gave me a gun. I told her, 'I don't want no gun.' She said, 'You'll come over tonight, won't you?'

Told Him to Get Out. "I waited in the yard," he told the jury in answer to one prompting question after another from the prosecution. "And several times she came out to me. She whispered, 'We'll do away with him tonight and throw him in the well.' Then she told me to get a club."

The State began its case shortly before noon as the State usually begins its case—by reconstructing the scene of the crime. It was not enough to accuse Angie Saali of helping Ora Thoele attempt to murder her husband, Peter. The prosecuting attorney handled that part in his opening address. The State had to picture a farmhouse at night; two men and a woman; the ambush of the husband by the lover; the happenings at the well in Peter Saali's barnyard.

The courtroom at St. Charles was so crowded that Judge Woolfolk ordered the sheriff to lock the doors if spectators continued to force themselves in. Angie Saali, her husband, Peter, and Ora Thoele lived in Portage des Sioux community, but all St. Charles County apparently had heard the story and desired to hear it again from testimony of witnesses.

"I picked up a club (there the witness, as shown a piece of scantling and the sheriff to lock the doors if spectators continued to force themselves in. Angie Saali, her husband, Peter, and Ora Thoele lived in Portage des Sioux community, but all St. Charles County apparently had heard the story and desired to hear it again from testimony of witnesses."

"Where was Mrs. Saali?" "Right beside me."

"Then what did you do?" "We picked him up and carried him to the well."

"Then what?" "She helped me throw him in."

"Then what?" "She told me to beat it. Then she ran over and picked up a clothes line prop."

A Willing Witness. The State closed its direct examination at this point. At intervals during Thoele's testimony Mrs. Saali's counsel interposed objection to him as a witness. Her attorney said that Thoele was a convict, that he had been brought from the penitentiary by a writ of habeas corpus; that he was an unwilling witness. The judge overruled each time. It seemed as if Thoele was a most willing witness and had been carefully coached.

Joe Saali Testifies. The first witness was Joe Saali, brother of Peter. It had been Joe, who, aroused by his brother's cries, had rushed across the road to the Saali house.

"I went into the kitchen," Joe testified today. "Angie was sitting by the table reading a magazine. I said, 'Who's making all the noise?' Where is Peter?"

"And what did Mrs. Saali reply?" questioned the prosecution. "She said, 'Oh, I guess Pete's out at the barn or at the horse trough.' I wasn't satisfied and ran out. I found Pete down the well, screaming for help. I ran back for a rope and told her what had happened."

"She said, 'What on earth did you do?'"

CONSTIPATED SOBAD PILLS HAD NO EFFECT

Mr. McClellan now in fine shape; able to work again.

"I suffered a great deal from stomach trouble, and was sick several times with it. Doctors couldn't do me any good, and pills had no effect whatsoever. I was so badly constipated. I was not able to work every day."—Wm. McClellan, Stockport, Ohio.

Physicians and pills cannot be expected to cure constipation. They seem to bring temporary relief, but usually make the trouble worse. They make their users victims of the habit. If you have this habit, Milks Emulsion will set you free, giving prompt relief and permanent benefit.

Milks Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action; does away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, and thus build flesh and strength. Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened; it is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting disease. Chronic stomach trouble is promptly relieved.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. SOME STORM
DAMAGE HERE; MAN
KILLED IN COUNTYDowntown Office Workers
Without Lights for Varying Periods, Street Cars Halted.

Downtown office workers were without light for varying periods yesterday afternoon, street cars were momentarily halted and elevators stuck, as a result of a severe rain storm, during which a man in St. Louis County was killed by lightning.

There were periods of darkness in East St. Louis and other East Side towns last night, causing delay in counting ballots in the Illinois primary election. A heavy shower of hail fell for a few minutes about 9:30 p. m. Jack Myers, 26 years old, of Brighton, Mo., working on the double-tracking project of the Price Railway at Ranken, was struck by lightning at 2:45 p. m. and killed instantly. The bolt burned a hole in his hat and tore off one of his heavy boots. His brother, Carl, who was working nearby, was stunned but not badly hurt.

Electric Supply Crippled. The chief effect, so far as St. Louis was concerned, was the stoppage of electric supply for three to 50 minutes. A huge transformer in the Page avenue station of the Union Electric Co. was burned out at 2:17 p. m., probably because of lightning striking the supply line from Keokuk dam. The circuit was restored in three minutes, but it took varying periods thereafter to regulate the "load" and supply various large consumers.

All cars of the United Railways were stopped from four to nine minutes by the failure of Keokuk power. Industries and downtown office buildings had to wait longer to get current again. Newspaper editions were delayed; the power was off 41 minutes at the Post-Dispatch. Some loaded elevators were stuck between floors. Failure of light delayed office work in some places.

Downtown theaters were without light for a time. At the Orpheum Theater a dozen candles stuck in the footlight space illuminated the vaudeville program for half an hour. Other candles were placed on a table and mantel in a sketch and the man and woman in the "headline" act held candles to light their faces, while the man improvised fitting remarks.

Telephones Out of Service. Fourteen hundred Bell and Kinloch telephones in St. Louis, East St. Louis, Granite City and suburbs were put out of service temporarily by the rain. Long-distance lines were not affected and the telegraph companies reported "no trouble."

Between 7 p. m. and midnight lights went out and street cars were stopped in East St. Louis and vicinity five times for a total of 34 minutes, due to the electric storm. Edwardsville election officials used candles for some time to count ballots. It was reported at Edwardsville that wire communications throughout Southern Illinois were crippled.

The total rainfall here, starting at 11:45 a. m. and lasting intermittently about 12 hours, was 1.11 inches, which, the Weather Bureau said, was not unusual for April. Gusts of wind reached the maximum velocity of 36 miles an hour. The hailstones which rattled down loudly and forcefully during the evening were half an inch and more in diameter. Fair weather, with frost and a temperature of 42 degrees, is the prediction for tonight.

Some Cellars Flooded. Numerous cellars were flooded and streets and country roads overflowed temporarily in places by heavy downpours of rain. Lightning striking the home of William Orville, 3419 Indiana avenue, caused $150 damage. A telephone pole in front of 517 Whittier street, was set afire by lightning. All the lights at Union Station were extinguished for five minutes, about 8:40 a. m. today, by cable trouble in the private power house, not traced to the storm.

THOELE TESTIFIES
MRS. SAALI WAS PLOT INSTIGATOR

Pete want to jump in the well for?" The crowd tittered and Judge Woolfolk thundered "Silence." Joe Saali went on with his story. How he had pulled Peter from the well and carried him into the house. How the neighbors had gathered and the speculation as to what had happened.

"You don't like Mrs. Saali, do you?" the defense cross-examined. "No, I don't," said Joe. "I never had any love for her."

Contrasting Attitudes. His attitude contrasted with Peter Saali's Peter and the children met Mrs. Saali on the courthouse steps this morning. He kissed her and told her not to worry. All jurors, except one, are middle-aged and married, and many of them have families. There are nine farmers, a deputy assessor, a hardware man and a grocer on the panel.

Prosecutor's Address. Prosecuting Attorney Bloebaum addressed the jury. The State asked only justice, he said. The State believed that Angie Saali was equally guilty with Ora Thoele. Together they had plotted the slaying of her husband. The State wished the jury to keep their minds above emotionalism. It was true, the Prosecuting Attorney said, that Mrs. Saali is the mother of five small children and that the defense probably would try to stir up sympathy for the defendant. The State expected that. But the people of Missouri demanded justice, stern and impartial.

While this was going on the defendant sat with her lawyer and watched the door of an anteroom. She made no apparent attempt to impress the jury, as women accused of killing or attempting to kill their husbands sometimes do. Angie Saali had not even worn her best dress to court.

SHOWN IN NOTES
OF HOLLAND BANKE. E. McJimsey's Name Attached to a "Special" for $33,600, Which He Never Signed.By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 9.—Intricate finance, mazes of which may be laid before a grand jury in the near future, marked the operations of the Holland Banking Co., of Springfield, which suspended Jan. 15, last, and which probably will be taken over today by the McDaniel National Bank of Springfield.

The Holland, which had resources of $4,500,000 at the time it closed, was the largest State bank in Missouri outside St. Louis and Kansas City. Among the assets carried by the bank were several notes, some of them marked "special," which have been the subject of extended comment. Little beyond perfunctory discussion of the routine developments has been printed by local newspapers, but Springfield, though a thriving city of nearly 50,000, retains many of the "Main Street" characteristics of general friendliness which hand the details of nearly all important local happenings from mouth to ear about as rapidly as does newspaper analysis in larger cities.

Regarded as "a Cat and Dog," One of these notes, which are for $33,600, and bears the purported signature of E. E. McJimsey, publisher of the Springfield, Mo., Republican, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for the governorship in 1920.

Auditors of the State Department of Finance, who have gone into the affairs of the Holland bank, are said to regard this as a "cat and dog," which in banking parlance means a slightly irregular transaction.

McJimsey said that he did not sign the note, which bears date of March 10, 1922, that he did not know until nine or 10 months ago of its existence; that he understood it was temporarily to cover some matters which the bank intended to charge off.

Explanation by President Sanford. E. L. Sanford, president of the Holland, said: "That was just a memorandum note to cover some stocks which the bank had to take over—we just carried it that way in the notes case instead of among the stocks and bonds. That's all there is to that. Nobody ever expected Mr. McJimsey to pay that note, for he didn't sign it. There's nothing wrong about the transaction, however."

Another is a note labeled the "D. J. Landers special," for $55,000, bearing the name of D. J. Landers, prominent financier and lumberman.

POOR SPELLING IN NOTE CONVICTS MAN

Samuel Lee Sheets Given Two Years for Writing Threatening Letter.

Samuel Lee Sheets of Paris, Ill., didn't spell ordinary words in the ordinary way—in fact he misspelled them in quantities. As a result he is under sentence to two years at Leavenworth, having been convicted by a jury in Federal Judge Davis' court yesterday of sending a threatening letter through the mails with intent to defraud.

On Jan. 31, last, J. P. Sparks of Kirkwood, a road contractor who formerly has employed Sheets, received an anonymous letter demanding $2500 which Sparks was to keep in his house until the writer and "his pals" called for it. Failure to do this, the letter warned, would result in Mrs. Sparks being injured and "assaulted" being thrown in the "face" of the Sparks 3-year-old daughter. The writer said he "ment business" and mentioned the sinister word, "disappear."

Sparks wasted no time taking the letter to Inspector Noah and Noah promptly arrested Sheets in his room at the Laclede Hotel. Sheets, denying he wrote the letter to Sparks, submitted to a spelling test. Noah dictated the contents of the blackmail letter to him and he misspelled acid, face, meant, business, disappear and other words just as they were misspelled in the original.

The letter and Sheets' spelling examination papers were presented to the jury at the trial. Sheets, still denying any part in the blackmail attempt, said he and Sparks were on good terms and therefore there was no motive for him to write such a letter. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence.

FRENZIED FINANCE SHOWN IN NOTES OF HOLLAND BANK

berman of Springfield, who at one time considered taking over the Holland Bank auditors regard this as another "cat and dog." Sanford said:

"At the time the Holland absorbed the Bank of Commerce, several years ago, it paid to the former owners of that bank, of which Landers was one, $55,000 as their profit or bonus. 'I wasn't in the Holland at the time, but, instead of charging that off out of the surplus, it was carried as a memorandum special.' Our intention was to charge off all that stuff, the odds and ends, early this year. But things got tight financially, that run rumor about us was started and we couldn't do it."

$100,000 in Saddle Paper.
Another set of notes causing controversy are 10 of $10,000 each, a total of $1,000,000, bearing signatures of the Herman Sanford Saddle Co. of Springfield, of which Sanford until recently was president. It is said that the saddle company intends to resist collection of these notes, all of which have passed from the Holland into the hands of other banks.

"That happened like this," said Sanford. "I bought 500 shares of Holland stock at $200 a share, or two for one, for the saddle company, borrowing money from the bank on notes of the saddle company to pay for the stock. The stock was transferred to me and I assigned it to the company. Here lately the company mailed the certificates to me without comment. I suppose that means it will fight collection of the notes. It was simply a purchase of the stock for the saddle company, but it had to be handled like that because, a corporation like that cannot own bank stock. But as directing head of the saddle company, I was making a business transaction for it."

$40,000 "Another Memorandum."
Another note for $40,000 bears the name of J. W. Brownlow, an officer of the Herman Sanford Co., which Brownlow is said to have declared he did not sign.

"That is another memorandum note," said Sanford. "The money on that note went to the saddle company, but it already had borrowed $40,000, so the $40,000 was carried in that way to present appearance of an excess loan."

Commissioner Frank C. Millspaugh of the Department of Finance is here today seeking to close a contract with the McDaniel National Bank to take over the Holland on the plan of the defunct Chippewa Bank of St. Louis, to pay depositors 40 per cent of their money at once, the rest to be paid as other securities are liquidated.

Discussion of affairs of the bank has been wide and various and considerable doubt as to grand jury inquiry into its operation has been voiced, to set at rest rumors which have been afloat since the bank closed. Judge Orin Patterson of the Green County Criminal Court would not say whether a grand jury will be called.

"I do not consider it proper, legally, to discuss that matter," he explained, "but I think you may be sure the officers of the law will do their duty."

It will be recalled that the State Department of Finance sometime ago fixed the total of assets, doubtful, frozen and bad paper in the Holland at approximately $2,000,000. This is too high, Sanford said, his figure on slow assets being about $100,000 at the outside.

"And there is nothing whatever wrong there," he said. "Anything which may look a trifle irregular was done solely to conserve interests of the depositors and nobody benefited from it personally to the extent of $1."

The Best None Too Good

"After many years of stomach suffering I have at last found a medicine for that trouble. But believe me it was a timely find. I couldn't have lasted a great while longer. My stomach would blast with gas like a barrel and the colic got to be awful. Medicine didn't help me until I got hold of May's Wonderful Remedy, which did the trick. I am telling everyone about it. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Productive Capacity of Germany Increased Since War—Detailed Analysis of Mortgage System By Which Reconstruction of Europe Is Sought

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 9.—The conclusions of the first committee of reparations experts—headed by Charles G. Dawes—which was handed to the Reparations Commission today, are officially summarized by the committee. This summary is based on Part One of the report, and is as follows:

1. The Attitude of the Committee. (a) The standpoint adopted has been that of business and not of politics.

(b) Political factors have been considered only in so far as they affect the practicability of plan.

(c) The recovery of debt, not the imposition of penalties, has been sought.

(d) The payment of that debt by Germany is her necessary contribution to repairing the damage of the war.

(e) It is in the interest of all parties to carry out this plan in that good faith which is the fundamental of all business.

(f) Our plan is based upon this principle—the reconstruction of Germany is not an end in itself; it is only part of the larger problem of the reconstruction of Europe.

(g) Guarantees proposed are economic, not political.

2. German Economic Unity. For success in stabilizing currency and balancing budgets, Germany needs the resources of German territory as defined by the treaty of Versailles and free economic activity therein.

3. Military Aspects, Continued. Sanctions and Guarantees. (a) Political guarantees and penalties are outside our jurisdiction.

(b) The military aspects of this problem is beyond our terms of reference.

(c) Within the unified territory the plan requires that when it is in effective operation: (1) If any military organization exists, it must not impede the free exercise of economic activities; (2) There shall be no foreign economic control or interference other than that proposed by the plan, but adequate and productive guarantees are provided.

4. The Committee's Task. (a) Stabilization of currency and the balancing of budgets are interdependent, though they are provisionally separate for examination.

(b) Currency stability can only be maintained if the budget is normally balanced; the budget can only be balanced if a stable and reliable currency exists.

(c) Both are needed to enable Germany to meet her internal requirements and treaty payments.

Economic Future of Germany. (a) Productivity is expected from increasing population, technical skill, material resources and abundance in industrial science.

(b) Plant capacity has been increased and improved since the war.

Currency and Bank of Issue. (a) All classes will benefit from stabilized currency, especially labor.

(b) Under present conditions of the rentenmark stability is only temporary.

(c) A new bank is set up or the Reichsbank reorganized.

(d) The main functions of the bank will be: (1) To issue notes on a basis stable in relation to gold with an exchange privilege; (2) To serve as a bankers' bank, establishing the official rate of exchange discount; (3) To act as the Government banker but free of Government control, advances to Government to be strictly limited.

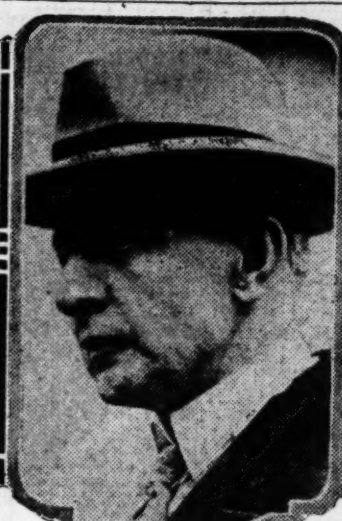

(e) The capital of the bank will be 400,000,000 gold marks; (6) It will be directed by a general board of managing, board who can be assisted by a German consultative committee; (7) The due observance of its statutes will be further safeguarded by a general board of which half of the members, including a commissioner will be foreign.

Budgets and Temporary Reparation Relief. (a) Full economic and fiscal autonomy subject to the supervision provided for in this report.

interest and sinking funds are accepted as follows: First year, nothing; second year, 125,000,000 gold marks; third year, 250,000,000; thereafter, 300,000,000 gold marks.

10. Summary of Provision for Treaty Payments. (a) (1) Budget moratorium period. First year from foreign loans and part interest on railway bonds, there will be a total of 1,000,000,000 gold marks; second year, from interest on railway bonds and from industrial debentures, from a budget contribution, through sale of 500,000,000 gold marks railway shares, a total of 1,220,000,000 gold marks. (2) Period third year, from interest on railway bonds and from industrial debentures, from transport tax and from budget, a total of 1,200,000,000 gold marks subject to contingent additions or reductions of 250,000,000 gold marks; thereafter, 2,500,000 gold marks; (3) Standard year, fifth year, from interest on railway bonds and on external debentures, from transport tax and from budget, a total of 2,500,000,000 gold marks subject to contingent additions or reductions of 250,000,000 gold marks; (4) It is morally sound. (5) It is economically just in its influence on costs of production. (6) This principle has been applied to the full limit of the plan.

(b) The first year will begin to run from the date when the plan shall have been accepted and put into effective execution.

11. Inclusive amounts and deliveries in kind. (1) The above sums cover all amounts for which Germany may be liable to the allied and associated powers.

(2) Deliveries in kind are to be continued, but are paid for out of balances in the bank.

12. How the annual payments are made by Germany. (A) The amounts will be raised in gold marks and paid into the bank.

(B) These payments cover Germany's annual obligations as revalued by the creditors.

(C) Germany's creditors will use these moneys in Germany or convert them into foreign currencies.

(D) Experience will show the rate and extent to which the conversion can safely take place.

(E) The risk to stability through excessive remittances is obviated by a transfer committee.

(F) Sums not remitted are accumulated but with a limitation of amount.

14. Guarantees in addition to railway and industrial bonds. (A) The following revenues are pledged for a continuation of collateral security for budget contributions and other payments: (1) Alcohol; (2) Tobacco; (3) Beer; (4) Sugar; (5) Customs.

(B) The yield of this sort of revenues is estimated to be substantially in excess of required payments.

(C) The excess is returned to the German Government.

15. External loan—its conditions and purpose. Foreign loan of 800,000,000 gold marks meets double purpose:

(A) Requirements of gold reserve of new bank.

(B) Internal payments for essential treaty purposes in 1924-25.

16. Organization. (A) The organization consists of: (1) A trustee for railway and industrial bonds; (2) Three commissioners of (1) railways, (2) the bank, (3), controlled revenues.

(C) An agent for reparation payments who will co-ordinate the activities of the above and will preside over the transfer committee.

17. The nature of the plan. (A) The plan is an indivisible union.

(B) The aim of Germany: (1) To enable maximum transfers to be made to Germany's creditors; (2) To take the question of what Germany can pay out of the field of speculation and put it in the field of practical demonstration; (3) To fasten a final and comprehensive agreement upon all the problems of the reparations committee's questions as soon as circumstances make this possible.

What Experts Found as They Begon Task. Part two of the Dawes committee's report deals with the conditions the experts found confronting them when they began their work, gives the reasons that led them to some of their conclusions and goes into various details regarding the currency, the finances, budget-making and the imposition of taxes and means of collection and administration.

The committee points out that when it took up its task the German currency could hardly be called stable, but was rather in a state of confusion. It was not clear what might be called a state of "unstable equilibrium." As measured by gold value the currency was deficient in volume, rather than excessive, being only about half the pre-war volume, and to meet this there had been resort to various devices as substitutes, such as the use of foreign currencies, token money and ultimately the establishment of the rentenmark.

As regards the temporary equilibrium the currency has reached, the committee found, however, that the situation was not stable, but was rather in a state of confusion. It was not clear what might be called a state of "unstable equilibrium." As measured by gold value the currency was deficient in volume, rather than excessive, being only about half the pre-war volume, and to meet this there had been resort to various devices as substitutes, such as the use of foreign currencies, token money and ultimately the establishment of the rentenmark.

classes, who have coped with less than their share of the national burden and reassurance by Germany that the income tax scales shall be properly adjusted to meet the needs of the classes and her own working classes to realize its good faith.

The committee finds that there has been no proper provision for dealing with incomes from abroad, and the necessity of adjusting inequities in this respect is pointed out.

Another need, the committee finds, is the establishment of a principle for governing the financial relations of the Reich and the Federal states and communes. It considers it essential that at the earliest possible moment preparations of complete statistics of the receipts and expenditures of the states and communes be resumed. The financial systems of these are such, it points out, that the Reich budget might be suffering from various ills while at the same time the communal budgets were enjoying considerable prosperity.

It makes no detailed recommendations on this point, holding the view that self-interest might be largely relied upon to bring about an adjustment if the committee's recommendations are accepted in their entirety.

"It does not suffice, in our judgment," says the report, "for the Reich to remain in a state of contentment with the present situation merely because it has been the result of a constitutional evolution. Germany waged war as an undivided whole, and the financial responsibility of the Reich to the allies cannot be qualified or weakened by the unimpaired rights of subordination areas. So long as Germany has any external obligations they must be paramount and the Reich must be assigned to the states and communes must be clearly defined and care must be taken to secure that these resources are not more than adequate for legitimate needs."

Possibilities of Taxation. The report then takes up the consideration of the various taxes recommended. It says there should be no tobacco monopoly, but that the free manufacture of tobacco should only continue under suitable regulations, and that the committee defines. These include the expropriation of unprofitable establishments and the formation by the remaining

As regards indirect taxes, the report declares, the rates appear generally too low and to be susceptible of increase without diminution of consumption, but thinks the turnover tax should be reduced somewhat in favor of other forms of taxation. The motor transport tax is considered too low, and the advisability of an increase in the petrol tax or the imposition of a supplementary duty on motor cars is mentioned. There is room, too, for much more revenue from death duties, the committee thinks.

The report proposes one commission to supervise the controlled revenues of Germany under its plan—the tobacco, alcohol, sugar and beer taxes—and the customs revenue as security for the payment of the sums charged annually for reparations on the German budget. This part of the report elaborates the recommendations in this respect made in Part One of the report.

The commissioner, it says, would have under him a subcommittee for each of the five controlled revenues. The selection of the chief commissioner would be from an area as wide as possible and not confined to the allied countries, the report recommends. This commissioner, it says, should have the assistance of a consultative and advisory committee on which each of the interested allied countries should be represented.

The report goes into detail with the system of depositing the revenues derived from the central bank account at the disposal of the commissioner. This officer should not have detailed responsibility, but would see to it that the system in general was sound and that the revenues were not more than adequate for legitimate needs.

Report on Flight of Capital From Germany and How to Get It Back. Foregoing calculations give German foreign holdings as of Dec. 31, 1923.

Section 2, estimated figures. (A) Assets abroad in 1914 belonging to German nationals and residing in Germany estimated at 28 milliard gold marks (about $6,720,000,000).

(B) The war period: (1) depreciation of German assets abroad; nonpayment of interest due and liquidation and sequestration measures resulted in a loss of approximately 16.1 milliard gold marks. (2) During the war profits and exploitation of Belgium, Northern France, Poland, Lithuania and Rumania approximated 5.7 to 6 milliard gold marks; and the sale of gold and of German securities aggregated approximately two milliard gold marks.

(C) Post-war period. (1) Principal causes of reduction: Deficit in Germany's trade balance and the meeting of cash payments to the allies under the Treaty of Versailles caused reduction of between 9 and 10 milliard gold marks. Earnings from German shipping, insurance, etc., greatly reduced.

(2) Principal causes of increased assets: (A) Sales of mark credit balances and paper marks resulted in profits of between 7.6 and 8.7 milliard gold marks. (B) German marks purchased by citizens of many countries and more than a million individual accounts were found in German banks. (C) Sales of gold aggregated one and a half milliard gold marks. (D) Sales of German real property and securities to foreigners approximated 1 1/2 milliard gold marks.

Section 3. Conclusions as to Amount of German Foreign-Held Assets. (A) Committee estimates that German capital abroad of every kind, whether liquid or in permanent investments, was not less on Dec. 31, 1923, than 5.7 milliard gold marks, and not more than 7.8 milliard gold marks, and it thinks the middle figure of 6.75 milliard gold marks is the approximate total. (B) By comparison with the 1914 estimate of German foreign holdings, shows a reduction in foreign holdings of approximately 21 milliard gold marks.

(C) In addition to the foregoing, foreign currency now in Germany approximates 1,200,000,000 gold marks.

(D) It must be remembered that foreigners hold property in Germany which has a counterbalancing effect and the committee estimates the value of such property as from 1 to 1 1/2 milliard gold marks.

Section 4. Conclusions as to Means of bringing exported capital back to Germany. (A) Flight of capital was a result, in the main, of the usual economic factors; namely, the failure to balance the budget, inflation,

GERMANY MUST PAY TAXES TO LIMIT OF CAPACITY, SAYS DAWES IN LETTER

Less Than This, He Declares, Would Give Reich Unfair Advantage—Refers to Experts' Plans as 'New Economic Peace.'

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 9.—Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes, the unofficial American representative on the first committee which examined into the economic and financial situation in Germany, in a covering letter to the report of his committee tells the Reparations Commission that the committee's recommendations "must be considered not as inflicting penalties, but as suggesting means for effecting the economic recovery of all European peoples and the entry upon a new period of happiness and prosperity unmenaced by war."

The covering letter of Gen. Dawes follows in part:

"To the president of the Reparations Commission:

"Sir: Your committee has unanimously adopted a report upon the means for balancing the German budget and the measures to be taken to stabilize its currency, which I now have the honor to submit.

"Deeply impressed by a sense of its responsibility to your commission and to the universal conscience, the committee has planned upon those principles of justice, fairness and mutual interest, in the supremacy of which not only the creditors of Germany and Germany itself, but the world also have a vital and enduring concern.

"With these principles fixed and accepted in that common good faith which is the foundation of all business and the best safeguard for universal peace, the committee's recommendations must be considered not as inflicting penalties but as suggesting means for assisting the economic recovery of all European peoples and the entry upon a new period of happiness and prosperity unmenaced by war.

Taxation to Limit. "Since as a result of the war the creditors of Germany are paying taxes to the limit of their capacity, so also must Germany be encouraged to pay taxes from year to year to the limit of her capacity. This is in accord with the just and reasonable in its nature and if the Treaty of Versailles, reaffirmed by Germany in its note of May 29, 1919, that the German scheme of taxation must be fully as heavy proportionally as that of any of the powers represented on the commission."

"More than this limit could not be expected and less than this would relieve Germany from the common hardship and give to her an unfair advantage in the industrial competition of the future. The plan of the committee embodies this principle.

"The plan has been made to include flexible adjustments which from the very beginning tend to produce a maximum of contributions consistent with the continued and increasing productivity of Germany; the conservative estimates of payments to be made in the near future are dictated by business prudence in outlining the basis of a loan and should not destroy the perspective as to the effects to be registered in the aggregate of eventual payments which will annually increase.

"With normal economic conditions and with productivity restored in Germany, the most hopeful estimates of amounts receivable are justified. Without restoring such payments as may be obtained will make of little value in meeting urgent needs of creditor nations.

New Economic Peace. "To ensure the peace and the new economic peace between the allied Governments and Germany, which involves the economic adjustments presented by the plan, there are provided the counter-parts of those usual economic precautions against demoralization which are recognized as essential in all business relations involving exchange obligations.

"The existence of safeguards in no way hampers or embarrasses the case of ordinary business contracts. The thorough effectiveness of these safeguards should not embarrass the normal economic functioning of Germany and is of fundamental importance to Germany and her creditors.

"Great care has been taken in fixing the supervision over Germany's internal organization so as to impose a minimum of interference consistent with proper protection. The plan submitted is fair and reasonable in its nature and if accepted is likely to lead to a durable and lasting peace. The rejection of these proposals by the German Government means the deliberate choice of a continuing economic demoralization eventually involving her people in hopeless misery."

DEPOSED GRECIAN MONARCH APPEALS FOR RIGHT TO REIGN. King George, in Proclamation, Pleads Against Destruction of Sovereign Will of the People.

By the Associated Press. BUCHAREST, April 9.—King George of Greece, who is residing at Brasov, Transylvania, yesterday issued a proclamation to the Greek people protesting against recent events in Greece and claiming the right to reign in accordance with his country's constitution.

"Having mounted the throne under tragic circumstances, for Greece, I reigned with the single sentiment—love of country and resolutely and faithfully to fulfill the functions given me by the constitution," says the proclamation.

"Determined to place no barrier in my spirit of patience and abnegation as long as I might have hoped the permanent interests of the Greek people would not be injured, I hesitated at no sacrifice as far as I personally was concerned."

"But when the Military League, forgetting the obligations it formally owed to the country and to me, and abusing my confidence, used force, not only to suppress temporarily political reports but to destroy by violence and against the sovereign will of the people the fundamental principles of state, I felt it my duty not to allow myself to appear by my silence to be a participant in an act of a nature to compromise the future of the country."

"Before such proceedings my patriotism imposes on my conscience the imperative duty solemnly to proclaim my protest against the inquiry committed against the nation and to claim the free right to execute my duties as King as prescribed by the constitution. I claim the right to carry out my mission, which is to reign impartially and without prejudice, centering all my efforts to bring back those who have strayed and to restore peace."

Full Powers for President. Secretary Wilbur Heard by Committee on Economic Mobilization.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, April 9.—Action to give the President unlimited powers to mobilize the nation's economic resources in time of war was advocated before the House Military Committee today by two Cabinet officers and an Assistant secretary, but they expressed differing views as to how it should be done.

Secretary Hoover favored legislation by Congress, but Secretary Wilbur, making his first appearance before a congressional committee, said he believed a constitutional amendment would be necessary. Assistant Secretary of War Davis said he was not qualified to advise a course.

The Jewish Hospital Campaign.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOW that our campaign for the hospital building fund is over I want to take this early opportunity of thanking you for the splendid support given us by the Post-Dispatch during the past few weeks.

The response of the community was most gratifying. The Jewish Hospital, although maintained by the Federation of Jewish Charities, is a non-sectarian institution in every sense of the word. For that reason we felt justified in making it a city-wide campaign. Your paper was a great help in placing our cause before the public and in arousing a community interest in our enterprise. We particularly appreciate your cordial editorial comment.

The members of our board join me in this expression of thanks.

The City Sanitarium.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PROPOS of the wide publicity given recently by our local newspapers to the numerous cases of alleged mistreatment of mental patients of the City Sanitarium on the part of the attendants, I wish, in the interest of fair play, to present the other side of the picture. I spent the month of last December in this institution and observed as carefully and as critically as possible the manner in which this vast number of mental cases was handled.

The sanitarium is an old building and has been added to from time to time so that it is poorly arranged in many ways. In spite of this fact, I found the place very clean, indeed; the atmosphere one of kindness, cheer, and optimism of laughter. In the entire month which I spent in this place I did not hear one unkind word spoken to a patient nor did I witness one single act of violence or mistreatment, but did witness many acts of kindness and much patience shown under trying circumstances. I saw evidences of affection on the part of attendants toward some of the patients.

During a stretch in the sanitarium about 180 of the quieter patients were taken across the street to a picture show, which they seemed to enjoy very much. On Christmas Eve the workers in the D. T. Department were given a party by Miss Leaver and her associates. Many hours were spent in planning and arranging for this party and it was a very nice one indeed. There was music, dancing, a tree, and refreshments. That party was one of the "truest" expressions of brotherly love that I have been privileged to witness in a long time.

The condition of these people is pitiable in the extreme, but one must remember that in the worst stages of mental diseases they are often mischievous, uncouth, unclean, obscene, and in many cases are very dangerous to handle. The attendants are poorly paid and often work 14 hours at a stretch in this abnormal and depressing atmosphere.

Patients often fight among themselves and often injure themselves by falling in an epileptic seizure.

No doubt there have been cases of abuse and probably there will be many more, but the impression that I received during my stay in this institution was that in spite of overcrowding, and in many instances the lack of proper facilities for the care of these unfortunate, as well as poverty of resources, the place was marvelously well managed and the patients as a whole were well cared for.

FAIR PLAY.

Militarizing the Civil Service.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AN act which surpasses in audacity even the leasing of the Government-owned oil reserves is the bill prepared by the Secretary of War and urgently recommended to the Senate by President Coolidge, which permits the general assignment of military officers to the Government Civil Service.

This bill amends the act of July 21, 1914, which makes it unlawful for any officer of the army to hold civil office, and is fraught with dangerous possibilities in thus opening up the civil branches of the Government to military domination.

The only conclusion that can be reached is that the administration in Washington is simply drunk with power to such an extent that they would Prussianize our Government. It is unbelievable that the indifference and apathy of the American people toward their Government is such as to encourage such a bland proposal as this.

The only thing left to do is to clean out the bunch in Washington from top to bottom. People had better wake up out of the day dream and make a good job of it next November. The remarkable thing about it is that our Congressmen and Senators have not approved of this latest raid on our liberties.

PUBLIC.

THE CRIMINAL'S MILLENNIUM.

The United States is by way of becoming the criminal's millennium. The man who commits a crime in the United States can, if he have the means or influence to invoke all the resources which legal practice has placed at his disposal, almost surely escape full punishment; not infrequently he goes scot free.

It is a serious situation. It has enlisted the attention and aroused the grave fears of the nation's ablest lawyers. It has been the subject of serious discussion at the annual conventions of the American Bar Association, which recognizes that the condition is intolerable. A painstaking study of the question was made by a committee consisting of Chancellor Hadley of Washington University, John G. Milburn of New York and Dean Mikkil of the University of Pennsylvania. The conclusions reached by Mr. Hadley were published in the Sunday Post-Dispatch. Those conclusions trace the historical genesis of many legal conventions and customs which, however sound originally, are no longer competent. Many of them were designed as offsets to the tyranny of the monarchial state. They constitute in their entirety an almost invulnerable armor for the criminal.

The solution of the problem, seemingly, is a system of court practice by which the man accused of crime can have a prompt and fair trial. When convicted at such a trial he should pay the penalty imposed. It should not be possible for him to postpone the reckoning endlessly by the numerous devices by which he now evades settlement. And when it is pointed out to us, as it invariably is by authorities like Mr. Hadley, that the English court practice, which once was as badly cluttered up with technicality as ours is, has been stripped of those barnacles—that the man charged with crime in England is tried and, if convicted, pays the penalty promptly—when we are told that in England punishment for crime is swift and sure—the natural question is why can we not have the same system of court practice here?

We could, of course, if we were content to respect the limitations of law as the English do. Unfortunately, that is not our attitude. The American people today are fairly obsessed with regulating everything by law, leaving scarcely anything to the judgment, discretion and character of the citizen. This mania for law-making has invested the Government with powers which could quickly develop into medieval tyranny if there were no strategic defenses against it. The one justification to be pleaded for the technicality which today so often defeats justice is the fact that the multiplicity of our laws and their steady encroachment upon the intimate manners and customs of the people would make us a law-ridden people, with only the shell of liberty left, if all the laws were truly enforceable and enforced.

The reform of this condition, therefore, which has brought our courts into popular contempt, and which makes crime a profitable and reasonably secure profession, cannot be effected by sweeping away the undue advantages which court practice has constructed for the criminal. That is a necessary step, to be sure. But that step cannot safely be taken until an enlightened public opinion demands, as a corollary, the repeal of the obnoxious, repressive inhibitions which have no place in the statutes of a dignified, self-governing people.

NO MORE BACKTRACKING.

Senator Pepper, late keynoter at the Maine Republican convention, has introduced a resolution for a world peace conference for the consideration of further reduction of armaments, for the advancement of international law and for the establishment of a world court separate from the League of Nations. After some heckling of the Senator by Democrats and no encouragement from the organization Republicans the resolution was assigned to the "mausoleum" of the appropriate committee, where, says our correspondent, it will repose until resurrection day, some time after the November election.

While the measure is not regarded as an administration proposal it may, nevertheless, have been a feeler from that quarter. If so, its reception was conclusive. It is the same old hokum proposition of something just-as-good but not the same as that now functioning for the rest of the world. It is the "association of nations" will o' the wisp over again, we ourselves being the only nation refusing to associate in a going concern. It strikes the same priggish pose which ignores all that other nations have done at heart-breaking effort without our sorely needed help and inviting them into our councils to undo it. It is the road of arrogance of a power too superior to respect the institutions, the achievements and civilities of others.

President Harding followed this route to its sterile end and finally compromised by advocating a League of Nations creation, the World Court. The reception of the Pepper resolution in the Senate shows there is no sentiment for any further backtracking. That kind of politics worked in 1920. A great many things worked in 1920 that won't work in 1924.

THE BILLBOARD ON ITS WAY OUT?

For many years protests against the signs and billboards that mar the looks of all thickly populated districts of the United States were put forth by organizations and individuals incensed by the ruin of landscapes by commercial display. All this was without effect. As if encouraged by opposition, sign-board advertising developed into a great industry. Its enemies, save Joseph Pennell, became hopeless or weary. The public resigned itself to lettering on every sky-line.

Then, after the strike had been generally dropped, a group of New York City merchants decided to improve the appearance of their street by taking down all except electric signs. The movement spread and was next heard of in the Minnesota Legislature, where a law was passed limiting displays along the railroad tracks. Now it has broken out among manufacturing companies, headed by the Standard Oil companies of New York and California, and is endorsed by Kirkman & Son, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co., the Pillsbury Flour Co., the Washburn-Crosby company, the Champion Spark Plug Co., the Goodyear Rubber Co., the Hood Rubber Co., the Ajax Rubber Co., the Sun Oil Co., the Gulf Refining Co., the Ward Baking Co., Dodge Bros. and the Fleischmann company.

Perhaps there is an economic explanation of this sudden victory for a lost cause. Has some delicate test of crowd reactions convinced big business that the highway sign evokes more antagonism than it is worth in sales suggestion? Are the billboards dying of their own ugliness or have they ceased to be effective because there are too many of them? Whatever may lie behind this unexpected good turn of fortune, we shall be glad to see them go—if they do.

TAX REDUCTION CHECKED.

The report of the revenue bill by the Senate Finance Committee would be a notable beginning for tax-reduction week if it were not that the bill differs so radically from the House measure that it is a signal for a fight rather than for a satisfactory conclusion.

Assuming that the conclusions of the tax experts in the Treasury Department were reliable, the Post-Dispatch was willing to accept the Mellon bill, in principle at least, but we were open to conviction. We thought the main thing was to get a reasonable measure which would result in substantial relief for the taxpayers of the country. We still hold that position.

It is evident, however, from the action of the House and the sentiment of a large number of Senators that it would be impossible to put through any measure in accord with the Mellon figures, particularly the income tax in the higher brackets.

That the bill reported by the Senate committee will result in prolonged debate and a fight with the House seems certain. Tax reduction will be postponed. In view of the approaching presidential campaign, politics will probably play a greater part in Congress than judgment and the public welfare.

The case, however, is not hopeless. There is opportunity for a fair compromise, and we cannot believe that a majority of Senators and Representatives will commit the folly of disappointing the people with regard to tax reduction. That would be the worst kind of politics.

When contractors fall out the city stands a chance of getting its money's worth.

FORD A HARD TRADER.

Henry Ford got a good deal of flattering publicity out of his purchase of the Lincoln Motor Co. As the story was told it was a sentimental adventure rather than a cold, hard business deal. Back of the story was another story.

Henry M. Leland, head of the Lincoln company, it seems, had been a friend of Ford's in the latter's struggling days. He had lent Ford money when Ford's need of money was desperate. And now the evil days had come to Henry Leland. His business was jeopardized. Bankruptcy threatened. At this crisis Henry Ford stepped in and proved his gratitude by purchasing the business himself, paying a small price. It was reported, but arranging to meet all the creditors' claims, and voluntarily undertaking to reimburse the stockholders in full to the amount of several millions. A princely gesture, forsooth, which only a multimillionaire could make and which Henry Ford, alone of all known multimillionaires, would be likely to make.

Now come the Leland's father and son, with a recital of grievances that leaves the first-edition versions of Ford's lordly generosity a tarnished bit of fiction. They say that Ford did not meet the obligations to the stockholders, nor did he re-establish the Leland's in control of the Lincoln company. They feel they have been bitterly deceived and very unfairly treated by Ford, whom they accuse of making many promises, few of which were kept.

The Leland complaint is, of course, an ex parte statement of the case. The truth probably will be set forth in the litigation which apparently is pending. Naturally, judgment must be withheld. Still, with the Leland's bemoaning the fate that thrust them into the clutches of Mr. Ford, it would seem the part of prudence for the Senate to look after the Government's interests closely before approving the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals. Mr. Ford may have his vagaries, but he seems to be a hard trader.

The hundreds of thousands of graft-paid politicians fixing liquor cases in Chicago may explain why it is so easy for the Antislavery League to keep the Government "dry."

A DRY SLAP AT QUEBEC.

A Post-Dispatch reader who says he has returned from a business trip to Quebec ascribes the emigration from that Canadian province to the New England factory cities to the desire of the people to get away from a place where the Government controls the liquor traffic. "Quebec," he says, "has taverns instead of saloons, places where you sit and drink and slobber and do the same old thing that were done in the 'good old days' in St. Louis. Yet they are losing population fast. Statistics show that they lost 168,000 people in 1922 and 1923 to the mills of New England."

This is an extraordinary argument for prohibition. If the Quebec workers can sit and drink at their ease at home, why should they flock to prohibition America, where they are liable to share the fate of the 18 poor wretches who bought bootleg liquor in Toledo recently and died from drinking it? Of course, the people who deserted Quebec for New England did so to get better wages, and in spite of prohibition.

Under Government control of liquor in Quebec alcohol in sealed packages, one bottle at a time, is sold through a commission, which is responsible for the purity of the liquor. Local option is enforced. Wines and beers are sold in licensed hotels, restaurants, steamboats, dining cars and clubs, at meals, by holders of permits granted by the commission. Under this system Quebec has a much smaller rate of crime and drunkenness than has "dry" Ontario, and a very much lower rate of crime than dry America, with so deaths from poison "hooch" and no bootleg industry. That is why dry Alberta has voted to put liquor under Government control, and why the sentiment is swinging the same way in Ontario. They want to get nearer to the truth enunciated by Montesquieu that "Man-kind is not governed by extremes, but by principles of moderation."

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: No doubt you young men have been reading about Prof. Irving Fisher, who is speaking here for the League of Nations.

SOCRATES: Have you noticed that he has about the only new idea anybody has had about the League since the late unpleasantness at the polls?

Polemarchus: I don't think we have noticed that, Socrates.

SOCRATES: I hardly thought you would. It is not only hard to believe that there is anything new about the League of Nations, but it takes an old and experienced philosopher to discover when there is anything new.

THRASYMACHUS: I suspect you have us there nicely enough.

SOCRATES: You may judge for yourself. You have perhaps noticed that when Prof. Fisher talks about the League he usually uses around and addresses school children. He has likely concluded that whereas old people have long ago made up their minds for one reason or another the minds of young people are still open and receptive to good ideas without political or any other sort of prejudice.

GLAUCON: Maybe he thinks we are ashamed to tell our children what we did about it.

SOCRATES: That may very well be. At any rate, I always have a sinking feeling in the stomach when I read that someone like Manley O. Hudson or Irving Fisher is coming to St. Louis to talk about the League of Nations, but I seem to have been unduly alarmed as to the latter. He understands quite well that age of us have long ago made up our minds against the League and regard it as the instrument of Satan, but he still hopes for our children and comes here to address them.

THRASYMACHUS: An excellent idea, wouldn't you say?

SOCRATES: Yes. You can imagine that downtown most of the audience would merely tolerate him, while holding fast to the point of view occupied by the Senate; but that would not be true at Principia or the John Burroughs School, which seem to have been the real objective of the Professor's visit.

Polemarchus: No, it would not.

SOCRATES: Very well. Would you say that it is or is not a new idea?

THRASYMACHUS: It is unquestionably.

GLAUCON: Indubitably.

Polemarchus: Assuredly.

SOCRATES: I think so. As something really thought out despite all that has happened, a very diamond of invention tramped out of the blue mud of our prejudice and distrust of the League, I think it does the Professor credit.

GLAUCON: It does, I suppose his motto is, if not in this generation, then in the next.

SOCRATES: Precisely. By the time the school children of today grow up the men who led us astray upon this issue will be dead. No doubt the absurdity they injected into the debate and the fears they conjured out of political passion will have been forgotten. It will be possible to look at the League with entire calm, unswayed by any of the ghost dancing which characterized the debate in 1920.

Polemarchus: A wise man, the Professor. Socrates, I knew you would say so. Now let us buy a paper and see if Mr. Coolidge has carried any more platitudes.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

NEWSPAPER "CORRECTIONS."

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

OUR national love of humor has created or encased in a try in amber the story of the fierce hank Georgia politician who lugged his razor-sharp tongue into the sanctum of Henry W. O'Connell of the Atlanta Constitution and brandished it over the head of the editor, exclaiming: "This morning the Constitution said I was dead. You must retract that statement. I must own you lied!" to whom the hank imperturbable Grady responded solemnly: "If the Constitution said this morning you were dead, then you were dead this morning. The Constitution never makes mistakes. But I'll tell you what I will do for you: I'll insert your name in the column tomorrow morning at regular verbatim rates."

Senator Owen of Oklahoma may have set up against something of the same sentiment in some newspaper office. At any rate, he thinks he sees an evil and proceeds at once to suggest its abatement by legislation. A bill he is introducing in the United States Senate becomes law, no newspaper may law the privileges of the mails if it refuses to publish a sworn denial, correction or explanation of any statement it has made or printed in the same page and column of the paper" as the statement complained of was published. . . . To print nothing that does not seem to come on good authority to reject for fuller investigation every statement that lacks verisimilitude, and to avoid being beaten on real news is the triple task of the conscientious editor. Deliberation is imperative. Time is not allowed. And if through an error of judgment or through misapprehension confidence in a news source what has been commonly welcomed, invariably tolerated. That is the rule of modern journalism.

RAILROAD EFFICIENCY.

From the New York Central Lines Magazine.

AMONG the many unjust charges brought against the railroads in recent years, particularly by self-seeking politicians, one of the most frequent accusations has been that the railroads were inefficient. It is true that the railroads are not a perfect machine by any means, but this is also true of all other industrial concerns. On the other hand, the railroads' efficiency is improving all the time and improving faster than the efficiency shown in many other industries. A striking illustration of this is found in the report just made public by the National Transportation Institute. This report shows that in the 20 years between 1900 and 1920 the railroads tripled their transportation output, although the number of their employees had increased only 25 per cent. Their output doubled. Manufacturing, on the other hand, increased its capital five times, doubled the number of its employees, but only a little more than doubled its output. Each line of industrial output in 1920 was more than 12 of increased capital had to be supported as against $1 in 1900; whereas the railroads, for every unit of traffic in 1920 only about 65 cents invested in capital had to be supported as against $1 in 1900. Each worker in agriculture used 2.7 times as much capital in 1920 and yet brought forth only one and one-third times his product of 1900. These figures show that the advance in efficiency by the railroads is also a reasonable basis for their ability to pay existing wages.

JOSEPH PULITZER'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

One of His Secretaries Tells School of Journalism He Founded How He Worked.

Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Joseph Pulitzer was "a master at getting on to outdo themselves." Harold Pollard, editor of the Evening World and formerly one of Mr. Pulitzer's secretaries, said yesterday before the School of Journalism at Columbia University. The event was the annual celebration held in April in commemoration of Mr. Pulitzer's birthday. He was born in Hungary, April 9, 1847.

"No man ever set a stiffer mental pace for those about him than Joseph Pulitzer," said Pollard. "He kept other minds going at a speed that ended by astonishing them. That was the way he set the most out of his lieutenants—a 'most' always more than the utmost of which they had thought themselves capable. When blindness came upon him he was like a giant creaking in a swift journey by a darkened road. To push on he had to have guides. But push on he did at a rate that often left the guides winded. To the end of his life he read, through the eyes of others, everything worth reading—historical, biographical, novels, plays, newspapers, magazines—that was published on two continents.

Thirst for News Never Slacked. "He drank in news as a thirsty man drinks water and his thirst for news was never slackened. American politics were the breath of life to him, and there he needed no guide. Speeches, platforms, policies, campaigns, personalities—he seemed to absorb them by mysterious sixth sense, while his mind rushed ahead to editorial analysis, guidance and selection.

"His impatience was often sorely tried—the patience of a man whose brain nobody could feed fast enough. Yet there were three things in which his joy was as simple as that of a child: (1) the announcement of a new book; (2) sending that book to the longest list of editors and friends he could draw up; (3) finding ambition and promise in some young newspaper man and laying plans to push him ahead.

"Of this last joy grew the school of journalism. He believed preparation for newspaper work could be taught. He believed that young men and women would avail themselves of such teaching. Here in this school, if anyone should be the broadest understanding of Joseph Pulitzer, you ought to be interested in knowing what manner of man he was. For his interest in young journalists was so great it pushed beyond those that he could know in his home. He surrounded you who study here to draw up: (3) finding ambition and promise in some young newspaper man and laying plans to push him ahead.

Letters to Be Published.

Prof. Chas. P. Cooper presided at the meeting, which was attended by 200 students. It was announced that a new book by Don C. Seitz, "The Letters of Joseph Pulitzer," will be published next fall by Simon & Schuster, Inc. Originally a two-volume work was projected, one volume to be written by Mr. Seitz, editor of the World. Mr. Cobb's death caused Seitz to change his plans, and he has decided to complete the biography alone. It will be one large volume.

Seitz has been collecting material and doing preliminary work on the biography since 1911.

The School of Journalism at Columbia was founded by Mr. Pulitzer, who, in 1912, set aside $1,000,000 to establish the institution. It was opened in September, 1912.

THEFT RING BROKEN UP AT SIMMONS PLANT

Eight Young Men Employed
Arrested—Confessions Obtained From Some.

Discovery of a theft ring among employees in the stockroom of the Winchester-Simmons Co., Ninth and Spruce streets, yesterday afternoon, resulted in the arrest of eight young men, ranging in age from 21 to 25 years, and confessions from the prisoners that they had been systematically looting the stock for more than a month.

Identity of the employees involved was disclosed when an official of the company, who had been investigating the disappearance of merchandise, saw one of the stockroom clerks slip several flashlights and a pair of pliers into the back part of his Ford roadster, parked across the street from the company's building.

Detectives Summoned.
Detectives were summoned and after they had confronted the employee with the evidence against him, he volunteered to tell his connection with the plot and to name the others who also had been stealing. As a result of his story seven other employees were arrested.

Seven of the employees readily confessed that they had been slipping articles out of stock and had been selling them to the eighth man, who, they said, was the ring leader. They accused him of having hatched the conspiracy and added that he was buying all of the goods they stole. This was denied by the man named.

The employee who owned the roadster, Thurston Eaton, 21, of 2408 Bell avenue, told the police he went to work for the company last October, coming here from a farm at Steelville, Mo. A little more than a month ago, he said, he purchased the roadster on the installment plan, paying $75 down and agreeing to pay the rest in monthly installments of $22.99.

Asked for Loan.
When the first monthly payment fell due, he said, he found that out of his wages of $21 a week he had been unable to lay aside the $22.99 and borrowed a few dollars from Clarence Maberry, 25, of 2225 Menard street, another clerk in the stockroom.
"You don't have to borrow any money," Eaton said. Maberry told him. "Slip some of the stock into your automobile now and then and I'll buy it from you."
Eaton said that he followed the advice and that about a week ago he sold Maberry an assortment of articles he had stolen from stock for $6. The other employees also told the police they had been selling articles they stole from stock to Maberry.
Maberry denied having anything to do with the theft of stock, and said the other employees were lying in an effort to place the blame for the thefts on him. However, the police are holding Maberry pending application for a warrant. Eaton is held as a witness. The others, who also are to be used as witnesses, have been released.

TWO NONUNION PAINTERS REPORTED BEATEN AT WORK

In Two Other Cases, Fresh Paint Is Said to Have Been Ruined—Strike in Progress.

Two nonunion painters were assaulted and in two other cases coal tar was smeared over fresh paint which had just been laid by nonunion painters. A painters' strike is in progress.

E. F. Trimble of the Eureka Painting Co., 4227 Evans avenue, reported two of his workmen were badly beaten when on a job at 3023 Sheridan avenue. The men are under care of physicians at their homes and their names are being withheld because of fear of further injury, Trimble said. Their assailants, six or seven in number, escaped in two automobiles.

William F. Rodgers, 3624 West Pine boulevard, an independent contractor, reported painting done by his men at 4425 Olive street was ruined by subsequent application of coal tar. Clarence Good, 3403 Beacon avenue, another independent contractor, reported similar vandalism at a job he had at 4110 Olive.

"FIERY CROSS" BURNED ON KIRKWOOD SCHOOL GROUNDS

Members of Board Believe It Was Done by Klansmen Celebrating Tax Increase Victory.

Members of the Kirkwood School Board today said they believed the burning of a six-foot "fiery cross" on the high school grounds there last Saturday night during a motion picture performance in the auditorium was done by klansmen to celebrate the successful campaign to increase the school tax rate from $1 to $1.50 per $100.
Klansmen took an active part in the election, one of the results of which was the defeat of William Daly, a Catholic, for a position on the school board. The fiery cross was erected quietly, and apparently without ceremony.

BROWN CAB has become the most successful cab company in the world on large volume of patronage and small profits.

This is our kind of business method. We are not subject to reproach, and the public gets what it is entitled to without paying ruinous prices.

We are furnishing the finest cab service possible at this period at the lowest rates.

These low rates have actually been fixed by the volume of patronage you have given us. Increasing volume with us means decreasing prices. And it would suit us if the volume were to become so great that we'd have a 5 and 10 cent cab service.

THREE FLAGRANT
CASES OF FLIGHT OF AUTO DRIVERS

One of Them After Being Pursued by Street Car
Motorman Refuses to Give His Name.

Three flagrant cases of felonious flight of automobile drivers from accidents in which persons were seriously injured, including the case of a driver who, after being pursued and overtaken by a street car motorman, deliberately refused to disclose his identity and fled a second time, were reported to the police last night and early today.

The first case was that of Miss Agnes Dagner, 20 years old, of 4462 Laclede avenue, a stenographer, who, after crossing in front of a west-bound Laclede car, from which she had alighted, in front of 4453 Laclede avenue, at 4:45 p. m. yesterday, was knocked unconscious by an automobile which was passing the street car, in violation of a traffic ordinance, at high speed.

The street car motorman, Thomas Morrissey, 3729 Lucky street, yelled at the driver to stop and when he was ignored abandoned his street car, jumped into an automobile driven by Stanley Ledman, 5939 Bartmer avenue, and followed the fugitive motorist to Euclid avenue and West Pine boulevard, a distance of more than two blocks, where he caught up with him.

Refuses to Give His Name
Morrissey demanded the name and address of the driver, who muttered some sort of an unintelligible reply and drove off, leaving the motorman standing in the street. Morrissey took what he believed to be the license number of the automobile and later turned the information over to the police.

Other witnesses of the accident picked up Miss Dagner and assisted her to her home, where a physician found her to be suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries.

The license number taken by Motorman Morrissey was found to have been issued to man whose address was given at Webster Groves, but whom the police of Webster Groves were unable to find. The name of the man to whom the license was issued is not listed in the Webster Groves directory. The police are still looking for him in the belief that he resides near Webster Groves.

Man Knocked Unconscious.
Peter Ahlheim, 61, of 5721 Easton avenue, was crossing Delmar boulevard in front of 4826 Delmar boulevard, where he is employed as a baker, at 3:45 a. m. today, when he was knocked unconscious by an automobile driven east in the boulevard at high speed. The driver made no effort to stop his machine and left Ahlheim, who suffered a fracture of the skull, lying in the street.

About 15 minutes later Detective-Sergeant Schoening, driving a police automobile east in Delmar, noticed an object lying in the street and, thinking it was a bundle of newspapers, got out of his machine to throw it aside. When he found that it was an unconscious man he took him to city hospital, where Ahlheim was revived sufficiently to give his name and address and the details of the accident.

Woman Run Over by Auto.
Miss Martha Wichard, 40, of 1143 South Kingshighway, suffered internal injuries and cuts and bruises about the body and limbs when knocked down and run over by an automobile in front of her home at 7:30 p. m. The two left wheels of the machine passed over her body. A dog, which Miss Wichard was carrying, was knocked from her arms.

The automobile, later described by Miss Wichard as a Ford touring car, was driven by a man wearing a tan cap. He was accompanied by another man. The driver made no attempt to stop, but put on more speed after the accident, Miss Wichard said.

Miss Margaret Johnson, 18, of 4171 Russell avenue and Douglas Cremin, 22, of 4213 Castleman avenue, a student, were cut about the head and face when an automobile driven by Cremin collided with another automobile at Grand boulevard and Park avenue at 2:15 a. m. today.

Two Hurt When Auto Hits Pole.
Miss Martha Simonin, 20, of 1536 North Eighteenth street, and Albert Dodgson, 22, of 1310 Monroe street, were cut about the head when Simonin's automobile skidded on the wet street in making a turn at Ninth and Branch streets at 9:45 p. m., and collided with an electric light pole.

Gus Bacon, 2932 Barrett street, and John Davenport, 1124 North Ninth street, a negro, were cut and otherwise injured when a truck, driven by Bacon, was hit by an Illinois Central passenger train at Main and Carr streets yesterday.

FINAL HEARING ON GERMAN BOND CLAIMS APRIL 22

Government Contends It Should Share in $5,000,000 of Funds Held by
Alien Property Custodian

MRS. LILY BUSCH
HAS $400,000 CLAIM

She and Other St. Louis
Buyers Trying to Realize on Total of $622,000 of Imperial Government
Bonds.

St. Louis buyers of bonds of the Imperial German Government, in the period before the United States entered the war, will have a final hearing April 22, before Federal Judge Davis, in their suit to attach German Government funds held by the Alien Property Custodian.

The United States Government, which itself has a claim of $16,000,000 against the Imperial German Government, is opposing the claims of the St. Louis, whose bond purchases amount to $622,000.

The plaintiffs on whose claim Judge Davis held a hearing yesterday are Mrs. Lily Busch, holder of $400,000 of the German bonds; August A. Busch, $100,000; Mercantile Trust Co., $100,000; Boatmen's Bank, $12,000; and Northwestern Trust Co., $10,000.

The St. Louis plaintiffs allege that the Alien Property Custodian has in his keeping sufficient funds of the Imperial German Government to meet their claims. They also exhibit the certification of the present republican Government of Germany, to the effect that it approves the payment of their claims from the impounded funds in the hands of the custodian.

Government attorneys, who were sent here from Washington to oppose the claim, said that the funds of the Imperial German Government in the custodian's keeping would not exceed $3,000,000; and that the United States, with claims of $16,000,000 for German reparations on American shipping, should share in the funds.

The Government lawyers, moreover, contended that it was uncertain whether even the $3,000,000 actually belonged to the German Imperial Government, and it held that the court, before deciding the case, must determine this question of original ownership.

May Be Other Claims.

It is believed that there are many other American purchasers of Imperial German bonds who would have an equal claim with the St. Louis plaintiffs to any funds which the courts may ultimately award for the satisfaction of the bond obligations. The Government lawyers hold that, if any substantial sum in the custodian's hands is determined to belong to the Imperial Government, it should be pro-rated among all the claimants, the United States Government included.

LIEUT. VAN VECHTEN KILLED
IN FALL OF PLANE AT DAYTON

He Piloted T-2 to St. Louis Air Races and Participated in Dedication Ceremony.

DAYTON, O., April 3.—Lieut. Theodore S. Van Vechten, stationed at McCook Field, was killed here yesterday afternoon when his machine fell from a height of about 2000 feet. Persons who saw the accident say that Lieut. Van Vechten's plane went into a nose dive. Van Vechten's home is in New York State.

Lieut. Van Vechten piloted the T-2, the monoplane used by Lieut. MacReady and Kelly in their cross-continental flight, to the Air races here last October. The T-2, with Lieut. Van Vechten piloting, carried Miss Catherine Perkins, daughter of Col. A. T. Perkins, around Lambert-St. Louis Field in a graceful flight as a feature of the dedication ceremony at the field.

DEMURRER ENDS $25,000 SUIT

Circuit Judge Taylor today sustained a defense demurrer in the $25,000 damage suit of Mrs. Martha A. Snyder of 4225 Maryland avenue against the Wagner Electric Manufacturing Co. and the Hartford Accident Indemnity Corporation, in which she alleged she suffered a nervous breakdown because the defendants caused an autopsy to be performed on the body of her husband, Louis, who died at the Wagner plant.

Wagner died as the result of an electric shock, Feb. 19, 1917, and Mrs. Wagner asserted that the body was "mutilated" by the St. Louis County Coroner because the defendants wanted to prove he died of heart disease and avoid payment of damages. Judge Taylor held there was no evidence to uphold her contention and ruled that the autopsy was performed by the Coroner as a necessary part of the inquest.

FIREMEN'S 8-HOUR
DAY LAW REPEALED

Their Uniform Vanquished by Plain Clothes Politicians in Wage Clash.

The uniformed fireman was vanquished by the plain-clothes precinct worker of the Republican organization yesterday, when the Board of Aldermen, by unanimous vote, repealed the ordinance establishing an eight-hour day for city firemen.

Comptroller Nolte's statement that he would not approve any salary increase bills for city employees unless the firemen's eight-hour law was repealed, packed the gallery and the floor of the board chambers with city employees urging the repeal of the ordinance. The Fireman's Union had about 20 members of their Executive Committee at the meeting in an unsuccessful effort to stem the tide.

Proposal to Firemen.
The Efficiency Board has recommended increases for 5000 city employees amounting to approximately $600,000. The increases averaged about $10 a month. Firemen were offered an increase of $15 a month by Comptroller Nolte, providing the repeal bill was passed and the suit now pending in the Circuit Court against the city for overtime pay based on the eight-hour day ordinance dismissed. The liability of the city at this time, if the firemen win the suit, amounts to $750,000, and the contingent liability, if the ordinance had not been repealed, would amount to $50,000 a month.

The ordinance establishing the 8-hour work day for firemen was put on the ballot by the circulation of initiative petitions at the majority election in April, 1921. The proposition carried by a plurality of 60,000 votes. The firemen, at that time, waived their rights under the provisions of the ordinance and agreed to work their present schedule of 24 hours on and 24 hours off. The firemen's fight then, as it is now, was for more wages and not for the 8-hour day.

Representatives of the firemen told Comptroller Nolte yesterday they would meet tomorrow and Friday to vote again on the question of accepting the offer of $15-a-month increase providing they dismiss the suit against the city. Nolte held them again that unless the suit is dismissed they will have to work at their old wage scale.

Street Widening to Be Speeded.
An ordinance appropriating $2,000,000, out of the $87,000,000 bond issue, to create a revolving fund to speed up the street opening and widening program, was passed by Aldermen.

My Beauty

Came from clay—and clay has kept it

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Today you hear much about facial clay, that rosy afterglow which so amazes and delights. Many women, with one application, seem to drop ten years.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. My baby complexion, at the age of 62, shows what constant use will do. No girl or woman who cares a whit for beauty can afford to omit clay. The users of clay stand out in every crowd.

A better clay
But there's a better clay than others offer now. It is a clay which France perfected for me. I call it my White Youth Clay.

If you have used another clay, this new clay will amaze you. If you have never used a clay it will be a revelation. Now this new clay is at your call. Out of gratitude for what it did for me, I am offering it to all.

Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1 per box. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth-Tonic, famous liquid cleanser. Also my Youth Lotion, which brought my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each. Let me aid you to the beauty I got and the youth I've kept. The first step is Youth Clay. Go learn what it means to you. Edna Wallace Hopper, 638 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

The supreme help
Clay does more for women's beauty than all other aids combined. It purges the skin of all that clogs it—the causes of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes.

It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is

He Learns "Liberty" on $1000 Papers Has Nothing to Do With Freedom.

George had argued with himself. He was a hard man to convince. But George's argument was a good one. "Liberty" meant "freedom" didn't it? Then a Liberty bond was a free bond. If a man picked one or two Liberty bonds from a corn in an office he was at liberty to keep them. Of course he was. George so convinced George that George kept the two $1000 bonds he found.

All this took place last Wednesday night when George was working as night porter in the offices of the Century Electric Co., 1827 Pine street.

This morning detectives were holding one George Taylor, negro, 40 years old, of 2928 Olive street. Maybe George's wife, Toledo, will try to get bond for him. And maybe Toledo won't. "She says I'm a plumb foolish nigger," George admitted humbly at headquarters today.

Got $1000.25 for One Bond. He had taken the two Liberty bonds home and had held another argument with himself. George was still a hard man to convince, but still he had a good argument this time, too. Nobody wanted those bonds or else they'd have taken more care of them. Stood to reason.

"So ah took me one an' went to Window 18 at the Mercantile Trust Company," George related. "Ah plunks it on de countah an' says, 'Give me a lil' change, sah.' The man give me $1000.25.

"What did you spend it for?" a detective asked.

"Necessities, necessities," said George.

"What necessities?"

"Ah bought me a suit an' a big meal of chicken."

What happened to the rest of the money? George's face became tragic.

"Quality Niggers Now."

"Ah took this heah roll home," he told. "an' the nex mawnin was a Sunday. Toledo had gone t' church. So I says t' lil' Jimmie, 'Sweep up de flo' t' yer ma gets back an' get ev'rything straight. We're quality niggers now.' So Jimmie swept up de flo' like I tell him and throwed de trash in a stove."

"But the money, George, the money?" detectives insisted.

"Why ain't ah done tell yo' Jimmie he done swept up man roll and throwed it in 'at stove. Yas sah! Ah smell de rubbah banda a burnin' an' rushes t' save mah money. But all ah pulls out was part of a rubbah band."

George estimates that $900 was burned.

"Another Chance."

Then George held another argument with himself. Old George was even yet a hard man to convince. But he figured "no use cryin' ovah what am gone. You got another chance. You is go' another bond left."

George was trying to dispose of this second bond in a loan office at Tenth street and Franklin avenue yesterday when detectives on pawn shop duty arrested him. The bonds belonged to an insurance association of the electric company employees and were misplaced from the desk of an officer.

before Circuit Judge Falvenhauer. In whose court the indictment was returned last February, Carpenter said his client would plead not guilty and stand trial. Parks qualified for $40,000 and was accepted as surety on Frank's bond.

Frank disappeared from the hotel the day after accountants began the annual audit of his books. Lyman T. Hay, manager of the hotel, said Frank drank heavily after the advent of prohibition. Frank came to St. Louis when the Jefferson opened and was employed as a bookkeeper. He was made auditor in 1913 and put under $5000 bond.

A News Message to Men

THE interest of the business man in the Post-Dispatch is not confined to the financial pages, indispensable as he finds them; nor to the live sports pages. Sharing his interest in the news columns are the advertising columns of the Post-Dispatch.

They have an important bearing on the personal side of his life; they bring him a news message which is indispensable—the message of what it means to be well dressed and how to achieve it.

No one will deny the importance of personal appearance in attaining success. There is something about the consciousness of being well clothed that inspires self-confidence, and self-confidence inspires confidence in others.

It is this fact which makes the advertising columns so interesting and so vital. To be well dressed is not difficult—it need not be expensive. It only requires a knowledge of what to buy and where to buy.

Every man who reads the Post-Dispatch daily and who gives time to the clothing advertising in its columns finds here all of the information he needs.

He is informed as to what is correct in fit and style of suits; what is the popular last in shoes, what the prevailing colors in ties and socks; what the man who plays golf, who rides horseback, who drives a car, wears—in short, what it means to be correctly attired for any occasion.

He finds out where to go for good clothes, and often he is able to take advantage of special prices which mean an appreciable saving.

The men who read the Post-Dispatch are the progressive business men of St. Louis. That clothing dealers and specialty shops find them—and their families—the most profitable clientele of newspaper readers to reach, is evidenced by the large amount of advertising in the Post-Dispatch which has a direct appeal to men.

Men who succeed and advertisers who sell to men who succeed, meet each other here to their mutual advantage.

It Appears That the Browns Grabbed Everything From the Ft. Worth Cats but the Cats' Meow Shocker Probably Will Not Oppose Cardinals in Spring Series; Sisler Wallops Ball

Browns Play Errorless Ball in Defeating Ft. Worth — McManus' Foot Mends and He Takes Turn at Batting Practice.

By J. Roy Stockton,

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

TULSA, Ok., April 9.—If Marty McManus is able to open the season at second base with his right foot recovered from the sprain suffered last Saturday and if Kenny Williams hits his batting stride by then, the Browns will be in excellent condition to start the scramble for the American League pennant.

Williams in the two games with the Fort Worth Cats showed the effects of his long layoff. His toe has healed and he runs and fields in his best style, but he needs much batting practice to get him back to the condition he was in when he suffered the accident in Mobile.

McManus returned to uniform yesterday, but he confined his work to batting practice and he did not bat footed, without putting too much weight on the lame foot. He is confident that he will be fit by next Wednesday and is hoping to play in the second game at Tulsa.

However, it is likely that Sisler will keep him on the bench until the foot is strong. The swelling had subsided yesterday and McManus was able to wear a shoe again. He had been hobbling around in a tennis slipper.

Sisler said last night that he would not announce his spring series or opening lineup until later. However, it is accepted as a certainty that Sisler will be at third base and that Urban Shocker will pitch the opening game in Chicago.

Shocker probably will work a bit in tomorrow's game with Tulsa, which indicates that he will not appear during the spring series with the Cardinals.

Elam Vangilder who came to Tulsa ahead of the Browns reported this morning that his pitching hand, bruised by a fung bat in Mobile, has responded to treatment and that he is ready to work.

Another bit of good news was that Herschel Bennett's sprained ankle was about healed and that he would be ready for duty by the time the season opened. Bennett may even get a chance to sharpen his batting eye in the opening series.

Browns Score Thirteenth Victory. The Browns scored their thirteenth victory of the spring training trip yesterday, slugging their way to victory over the Texas League champions, the 4-2.

Shocker led the attack, George getting two singles and a double in four times at bat. His last time up he hit a tremendous fly to center field, but he was blowing from center and the ball was held back long enough for the center fielder to make a fine catch.

Having placed three hits safely, George apparently tried to see how far he could belt one and he certainly put power behind his swing. Jacobson also contributed a double and two singles in five times at bat and stole two bases. The Baby Doll looks better than he has in any spring since the Browns have been recognized as a ball club going somewhere. He has been hitting the ball hard and his arm appears stronger.

Ernest Wingo pitched the first three innings for the Browns and was effective, though wild. He gave two bases on balls and one hit, that one being a line drive over the left field fence by Bob Beecher, former National League star. Bob had a great day, hitting one hit right-handed and turning around to drive one into the right

Browns Arrive Home Friday Morning; Play Tulsa Oilers Today

TULSA, Ok., April 9.—LIXIE DAVIS will be one of the Browns' pitchers this afternoon in the first of two games with the Tulsa Oilers, and if Vangilder has recovered after the operation on his hand he may work. However, that is not likely. Shocker will work in part of the second game. The Browns were busy from the ball park to the train tomorrow evening and will arrive in St. Louis at 7:30 Friday morning.

Secretary Willis Johnson has arranged to have the train stop at Tower Grove station, as by detouring there the players can get to their homes earlier.

field bleachers off Ray Kelp. Kelp is hit hard by the Cats collecting nine hits while he was on the slab. However, he showed a fine curve and had seven strikeouts in six innings. In the sixth he fanned the last two batters and in the eighth, after walking the first man, he struck out three in a row. His worst inning was the ninth, when the first two batters singled and the third walked.

Shocker pitched for Fort Worth and the Browns were hitless in only two innings.

Persons who have insisted on waiting for Sisler to face big league pitchers before passing on his batting eye are weakening, as Sisler continues to hit fast balls and curve balls and curves to all fields. Yesterday he batted a single down the third base line the first time at bat. In the fifth inning he lined a double down the right field line and in the seventh when the third baseman played well over toward the bag, George chopped a single between third and short, a low liner that no one had a chance to cut down. In the same inning Sisler stole second easily and scored.

When Kenny Williams got on only hit of the day, a double to right. That was the only time Williams got the ball out of the infield. Twice he rolled feebly to the first baseman, once he passed to the catcher and the last time up he grounded politely to the second baseman.

Play Errorless Ball. The Browns went through the game without an error, though there were many difficult chances. The team appears to be strong defensively and if it can start hitting the ball early in the season its chances of landing somewhere will be greatly enhanced. The hitting strength is there, but despite the 12 hits yesterday and the 16 in 14 innings the day before, it cannot be said that the squad is hitting in its best form.

More Than Four Hours Required to Finish First Block of 182 Match.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Willie Hoppe, world's 182 ballkline billiard champion, tonight will enter the second block of his championship contest with an advantage over Edward Horemans of Belgium by virtue of his victory last night in the first block of the 1500-point match.

Hoppe displayed frequent signs of nervousness and at several stages seemed likely to lose the first block.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Out of Luck.

OF all the out-of-luck managers in the major leagues, at the present time, Branch Rickey has most to grieve about.

With the start of the championship race only six days' distant, the team must take the field under the severest of all handicaps—the lack of a major league catcher. Accidents and failure of several deals left him with bush league receiving talent only.

In addition, Rickey has other night thoughts that are not all comforting. Among Rickey's worries are:

The third base problem, the well-known uncertainty as to shortstop, the ordinary outfield, an infield that is heavy on the right and light on the left hand side, and practically the same pitching reliance as last year.

Without a receiver of quality the pitching can't do itself justice. The one consoling thought for the Rickeymen is that the competition is weak. In a nation of blind people a one-eyed man would be king.

The National League as a whole appears to be so mediocre that even the Cardinals, poorly balanced as the unit seems, are practically certain to be in the first division.

If able to strengthen the weak spots during mid-season, Rickey might even challenge for a place at the top, such is the uncertainty of the competition.

Giants Are Slipping. NEW YORK has a formidable manager and a few good players, but in personnel is very little if any stronger than the Cardinals. Cincinnati has a real team and a question mark as a manager. Cincinnati ought to win the flag—but Cincinnati has been in the same fix before without coming through.

Pittsburg is dangerous but not impressive, and the Cardinals figure right up with them—if a catcher can be found.

Right there is where Rickey seems out of luck. Backstons CAN'T be purchased. The National League has few if any Gold-fitted men's teeth are more plentiful.

A Real Contest. B. T. HUPP, associate chairman of the Olympic Field Committee, has done the community a real service. He succeeded where all others had failed, in bringing Washington and St. Louis Universities together and in arranging the best basketball match of the year in this vicinity—between St. Louis and Washington University teams.

Two Home Runs for Ruth. NEW YORK, April 9.—Babe Ruth's daily act passed before the massed throngs of fans at the Polo Grounds yesterday. He hit two home runs, one a sloping drive to left field, the other a towering shot to right field.

The Yankees, batting out 24 hits for 28 runs, while Brooklyn batters netted 16 hits for 12 runs.

BOSTON, April 9.—Albert G. G. Jr., chairman of the Athletic Committee of the Boston A. A., has written to the American Olympic Committee recommending that Frank Zona of Newark, N. This would relieve Zona, who won the Baltimore marathon on March 8, and the Detroit marathon on April 5, of the necessity of competing in the B. A. A. marathon on April 19, the final Olympic tryout.

Zona has not yet sent his entry for the B. A. A. event, but it is understood that he plans to compete.

Clemons Hobbling About on Cane

Cardinal Catcher May Be Ready to Work Shortly After Season Opens.

Vernon Clemons has so far recovered from his knee injury suffered a month ago at the Cardinal training camp at Bradenton, Fla., that he may be ready for work shortly after the start of the season.

He has been in St. Louis under the care of the club physician, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, for two or three weeks and is now getting about with the aid of a cane.

The probability of Clemons' return to the lineup is especially cheering to the Cardinals, for none of the second-string catchers has shown great promise. Manager Rickey had opened negotiations for a trade but it is evident now that he will probably not get the man he was after and the burden will be placed on Clemons as soon as he is ready for work.

Members of the team are Hackler, Monatt, Riche and Reese. Cambridge University of England and the pick of the American colleges are entered in the sprint meet.

Zuna Recommended For a Position on U. S. Marathon Team

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 9.—Albert G. G. Jr., chairman of the Athletic Committee of the Boston A. A., has written to the American Olympic Committee recommending that Frank Zona of Newark, N. J., be chosen for the American Olympic marathon team without further test. This would relieve Zona, who won the Baltimore marathon on March 8, and the Detroit marathon on April 5, of the necessity of competing in the B. A. A. marathon on April 19, the final Olympic tryout.

Zona has not yet sent his entry for the B. A. A. event, but it is understood that he plans to compete.

Clemons Hobbling About on Cane

Cardinal Catcher May Be Ready to Work Shortly After Season Opens.

Vernon Clemons has so far recovered from his knee injury suffered a month ago at the Cardinal training camp at Bradenton, Fla., that he may be ready for work shortly after the start of the season.

He has been in St. Louis under the care of the club physician, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, for two or three weeks and is now getting about with the aid of a cane.

The probability of Clemons' return to the lineup is especially cheering to the Cardinals, for none of the second-string catchers has shown great promise. Manager Rickey had opened negotiations for a trade but it is evident now that he will probably not get the man he was after and the burden will be placed on Clemons as soon as he is ready for work.

Piker Athletes to Meet McKendree And Rolla Teams

Triangular Track and Field Meet Scheduled at Francis Field Next Saturday.

The Pikers will engage in the second outdoor track meet when they participate in a triangular competition with the Rolla and McKendree College at Francis Field Saturday afternoon.

The Pikers should have no trouble in vanquishing their opponents in the various events. The Washington victory over Vanderbilt last week indicates that Coach Rider has another strong aggregation this year, and will be the victor in the various events.

The strength of neither of the two visiting teams is known. Rolla has, in recent years, been strong in the weight events, but Coach Egan will not have the advantage this year of Runne, his star weightman, and the big fellow's absence will lessen the Miners' strength considerably.

McKendree Sure of Javelin Team. McKendree is also an uncertain quantity, although the boys from Lebanon have several stars on their team. The Illinois athletes are sure to win the javelin event. Their representative in this form of competition can hurl the weapon some 180 to 200 feet, which is a good performance and much better than the Piker javelin throwers are capable of.

The only possible changes in the Piker ranks will be in the relay teams. The Piker team is still experimenting in an attempt to develop combinations equal to last year's.

One of the most gratifying results of the Pikers' triumph over Vanderbilt was the fine showing of Arnold Williams, the former University City High star, who ran a pretty race to win the 80-yard dash and shortly afterwards ran a quarter-mile in the relay. His time for the distance in the relay was faster than that of any of his teammates in spite of the fact that he was captain of the team, is conference 446 champion.

Winners of Pikeway-Billiken Basket Battle to Claim Title; Both Quints in Top Condition

Washington Team, Despite Loss of Jack Minner, Will Have Formidable Scoring Power—St. Louis University to Have Regular Team in Field—Big Attendance Expected.

By Arthur Schneff.

The Piker basketball team will engage in its final practice this afternoon in preparation for the Olympic fund battle with St. Louis University at the Coliseum tomorrow night. The collegiate game will be preceded by an equally interesting combat between two all-star teams picked from St. Louis and County High School players.

Although tomorrow night's match is described as an exhibition game, with proceeds to go to the Olympic fund, for all practical purposes the contest is for the collegiate championship. Washington and St. Louis U. have the strongest teams in the city, and it is probable that the combination which wins tomorrow night will claim the title. Whether the winners claim it or not, certain it is that they will be generally regarded as the champions, so the game in effect will be a championship affair.

Both combinations realize this and the coaches of the two institutions have done their best to put together the strongest possible representation. The Billikens will be on hand with the outfit of five regulars and one substitute. The Piker team will be on hand with the outfit of five regulars and one substitute.

Pikers May Miss Minner. Capt. Egler, who for a time was expected to play, has reported for action and will be in uniform to lead his teammates. The Pikers, although deprived of injuries of the stellar services of Jack Minner, expect to have five regulars to open the season. Making some allowance for Minner's absence, the team will be as strong as the outfit that made the Pikers dangerous contenders in the conference race. If the ability shown in recent practice sessions counts for anything, the rearranged combination is in many respects better than the former outfit.

The only probable change in the lineup of the Pikers is the use of "Josh" Dundee as a member of the quartet. Dundee has been showing a lack of experience, but he has been developing at a great rate. At present he can do the 80-yard dash in 55 seconds, and if he continues to show improvement, he will be a valuable member of the quartet. One of the most gratifying results of the Pikers' triumph over Vanderbilt was the fine showing of Arnold Williams, the former University City High star, who ran a pretty race to win the 80-yard dash and shortly afterwards ran a quarter-mile in the relay. His time for the distance in the relay was faster than that of any of his teammates in spite of the fact that he was captain of the team, is conference 446 champion.

Cox Playing New Position. Capt. Cox, shifted from running guard to forward, has been playing a fine game at that position and will unquestionably handle himself well in the future. If it were his usual place, Martin Lyle, who usually plays at forward, has taken Cox's place at running guard, but this move has not in the least weakened the team. For Lyle's playing at guard has been one of the features of the daily scrimmages at Francis gymnasium. Seago, center, and Well, back guard, will play their regular positions.

The above-mentioned four players are sure to start for the Pikers, but Coach White is having some difficulty in choosing his other forward. The choice lies between the veteran Fritz Wagner and Ted Winkler, who played in a number of the conference games. Wagner has not fully recovered from the effects of a recent operation and it is hard to tell how much heavy work he can stand. It is certain that both of these men will play, but it is not known which will start the fray.

Ness, forward; Manning, York, guard, and Hallauer, center, will also be available for relief work. This is strong material for emergencies. Manning and Hallauer are letter men, and Oille Ness has played in conference games, in several of which he starred.

Billiken's Last Workout Today. Today's scrimmage at the Armory will be the last workout for the St. Louis University basketball team in preparation for the tilt with Washington University. The Billikens are scheduled to play tonight.

You don't have to be a golfer to make knickers useful. Whenever there is out-of-doors, this playtime garb is quite the proper thing. Just the knickers, if you say; or the popular, useful four-piece sport suit, coat, vest, regular trousers and knickers. The tweeds and home-spuns of England and Scotland are the most appropriate, and because you want to be as smartly dressed for play as for work—custom tailoring.

Carpentier Will Train in Public

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, April 9.—Georges Carpentier, that gay, young blade of the boulevards, notified all concerned today that it was his worthy intention to make a public matter of his training for the scheduled bout with Gene Tunney here on or about June 6. The glad tidings were received in a cablegram to Jack O'Brien, who conducts an exclusive gymnasium here, exclusively for Carpentier. 3 Negro Jumpers May Get Places On Olympic Team

Sol Butler, De Hart Hubbard and Ned Gordin Lead All U. S. Rivals.

By Loren Murchison. American Sprint Champion. (Copyright, 1924.) When America starts to defend the track and field championship of the world at Paris this year, she will have a mighty hard task. Critics have said this time and again until the task now seems even greater than it really is. I think that the field events will be the deciding point.

Recently I picked the shot-putters of America and tried to size up the best weight men in this country and abroad. Now I would like to consider the broad-jumpers who stand out in our track ranks.

It might be said that, just as in the shot-put, America has something to go after in the broad jump. This is another event in which the Stars and Stripes had to bow before the prowess of another nation in the games at Antwerp. The defeat was as much a surprise as was the loss in the weight throw.

Those who recall the last Olympic broad jump will remember how America was expected to run away with the event until the time of the contests. The American jumpers had far better records than the foreigners and should have taken at least three out of the five places.

Butler Picked Tendon. Sol Butler, the husky colored jumper from the West, who won the trials, was picked to take first in the international games. Sol, who was also a dash star, had leaped within two inches of 25 feet, which was enough to win the event at a walk.

Butler was hurt just before the games and could not place. William Peterson of Sweden won the event with a good leap. The United States had lost another event that looked like a sure first place.

The men who will take care of the contests in the games this summer are some of the finest ever to come out for the event. The field is a choice one, but I would by no means hand America first place.

In the Mid-West there is a fighter who bears the name of De Hart Hubbard, Hubbard, by the way, need little introduction to the fans. This husky athlete sprang out of nowhere to become one of the greatest jumpers we have ever seen.

thing and who depends upon grace rather than speed for his great distances. He is still a youngster, but can be expected to carry the Red and Blue to the Olympic Games.

This completes the possibilities of the broad jump in Europe during the last year was put over by Hoff, the famous pole vaulter. Hoff, who holds the world's record for the pole vault, has jumped a half inch over 24 feet for the broad jump.

Four College Stars Win in Midwestern Boxing Tryout Meet

OMAHA, Neb., April 8. MATHEUR boxers of the Midwestern A. A. U. district decided eight championships here last night when 40 entries battled through a series of elimination bouts featured by heavy slugouts and frequent knock-outs.

The champions follow: Flyweight, Edward Finley, Parsons College; bantamweight, Edmund Frederick, Omaha; featherweight, Charles Watt, O. A. C.; lightweight, Royal Coffman, O. A. C.; welterweight, J. J. Higgins, O. A. C.; middleweight, Dorsey McIntyre, University of Nebraska; light heavyweight, Frank Clappitt, Iowa State College; heavyweight, Homer Scott, University of Nebraska.

Winners are eligible for the semi-final Olympic tryouts at Kansas City.

great jumper of them all. I think great care should be taken to see that this man does not come to the same plight as Sol Butler. Being of the negro race, the change of climate in Europe is liable to cause a pulled ligament or something of the sort and so rob us once more of a champion. Under careful coaching Hubbard should be as good as the best of them.

Right along with the University of Michigan star comes the world's record holder for the event—Ned Gordin, the great Harvard athlete of two years ago. Gordin, who has the record of 25 feet 3 inches to his credit, which is the greatest jump ever made by a civilized jumper, will come out for the team. Ned is no old man by a long shot and should be able to make the team.

When in his time Gordin was a great allround athlete, going in for all sports. He is a big man with lots of strength, all of which will help along. If Gordin makes the team, it will carry two members of the negro race as our best broad jumpers.

Le Gendre Still a Possibility. Bob Le Gendre, the great allround athlete, formerly of Georgetown, is another possibility for the team. Le Gendre may go in for the Pentathlon, but he will also find time to broad jump. Two years ago, when going at his best, the giant man who now wears the Newark A. C. colors was doing close to 25 feet. Bob is anxious to make the trip to Paris, and from what I have heard is going to train hard to make the team.

Two other men look good for places on the team. They are both college men who rank as the best in our schools today. One is Comins, the Yale star, and the other is Al Rose of the University of Pennsylvania. Rose is one of the hardest-luck jumpers who can break into the winning column.

Comins, who holds the intercollegiate title at the present time, has jumped 24 feet a couple of times and seems to have room for improvement. The Yale jumper is out to make good this year.

Al Rose is a product of Lawson Robertson. Rose is a fine type of athlete, who can do almost any-

Commissioner Refused to Draw Color Line in Proposed Title Event.

By the Associated Press. TRENTON, N. J., April 9.—State Boxing Commissioner Newton A. K. Bugbee declared today that he would sanction the proposed heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, the negro challenger, in New Jersey.

Commissioner Bugbee refuses to draw the "color line" and says that so long as Wills conducts himself with decency and abides by the laws he could see no reason why he should be prevented from participation in a title contest with the champion.

MUNICIPAL BASEBALL CAUSES DEMISE OF THE TROLLEY LEAGUE. Inroads of Municipal baseball, played to a free gate in public parks, has caused the demise of the Missouri-Illinois Baseball Trolley League. The organization was formed 25 years ago with teams in St. Louis and surrounding towns in Illinois. It died at a meeting of the directors this week.

St. Louis, East St. Louis, Alton and Belleville were the chief box offices centers when the league was in its hey day but in recent years each of these cities has taken up Municipal athletics and the semi-professional league was driven out. The Trolley League had its inception in 1898 under the leadership of Thomas W. Cahill. Associated with him were Winton K. Barker, Henry Kulage and Tim Kavanaugh. A park was built at Newstead and Lee avenues, known as Kulage's Park, and later a park was built at Garrison and North Market streets, known as Athletic Park. The success of the Municipal League in St. Louis, with its center at Fairground Park, which is comparatively close to both Kulage's and Athletic Park, put the two private fields out of existence.

Billard Results. CHICAGO—Auggie Kleckhefer defeated Pierre Maupome in two Three-Cushion League matches. The score: Kleckhefer, 33-9-32; Maupome, 20-4-22. Kleckhefer, 39-6-22; Maupome, 42-10-22.

Notes From the Training Camps

Male Watson Batted Hard. Giants and White Sox were victims of human failings. The score board read, Giants 10, White Sox 9, in the ninth inning, so the Giants gave up their inning and went to the showers well satisfied, only to discover that the score boy had made an error, the game having really been a tie. The Giants, with Claude Jonnard in the box, started the sixth with a seven-run lead, the Sox having been unable to get more than two rallies. It was then that McGraw presented the Chicago batters a lamb in John Watson. In two innings they gathered the seven runs needed to even matters. Meusel, Frisch and Young were the hitting stars.

Speaker Has Injured Finger. CLEVELAND, April 9.—Doubt was expressed by the manager, Tris Speaker, will be in the lineup when Cleveland meets the New Orleans Athletics (C) at New Orleans today. Speaker's index finger of his right hand is badly swollen, the result of stepping a line drive during Monday's workout.

Carl Mays Is Injured. CINCINNATI, April 9.—Carl Mays was hit on the arm by a pitched ball during batting practice yesterday and had to retire. His arm was reported in bad shape last night, and he may not be able to work for several days.

PETERSON WILL OPEN EXHIBITION TOUR AT KANSAS CITY TONIGHT. Charles C. Peterson, St. Louis fancy shot expert and "shortstop" 18.2 and red ball champion, departed last night and tonight will open an extended road tour at Kansas City. Peterson is scheduled to give an exhibition at the Kansas City Athletic Club. He will give an instructive talk on billiards, play 18.2 and wind up with fancy shots. Peterson has added several new fancy shots to his collection.

Following the exhibition at Kansas City, Peterson will visit the following places: Lincoln, Omaha, Grand Island, Kearney, Neb.; Cheyenne, Ogden, Salt Lake, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Diego, Bakersfield, Porterville, Fresno, Stockton, San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, Eugene, Corvallis, Salem, Portland, Astoria, Gresham, Seattle, Tacoma, Victoria and Vancouver.

Peterson also announced before his departure that he would play at Tia Juana.

If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Fight on High School "Frats."
NEW YORK, April 8.—A campaign among parents to prevent high school students from joining fraternities and sororities has been started here by Dr. J. Herbert Low, principal of Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, as the result of the burning of three girls by silver nitrate during initiation rites. Helen Chapman and Helen Steingesser, two of the girls burned, returned to school yesterday and assured Dr. Low they were through with Delta Kappa Gamma, the sorority, "for good." Physicians said the burns would not leave permanent scars on the girls' faces.

Larvex—the new, scientific protection against moth damage—would have saved this dress.

Last fall Mrs. Carter bought a dress—a real bargain. Just the thing to wear this spring!

When she took it out the other day she could have cried! Big moth-holes—all down the front!

This kind of tragedy can never happen to you if you use Larvex—the new, scientific way to make every woolen thread your own absolutely mothproof.

Several years ago, garment manufacturers demanded a way to end damage by moths. They couldn't afford to have any guesswork. Chemists evolved Larvex—a liquid that gets at the heart of the trouble by making wool fibres inedible to moth larvae.

Now Larvex, which has proved so successful in the garment trade, is put up in bottles for home use. Larvex is a clear, colorless, odorless liquid—absolutely odorless. It is sprayed onto the garments with the Larvex atomizer, which comes with the bottles of Larvex. Spray it on woolen clothes, rugs, draperies, furniture, hangings—anything of wool. Hang your clothes away in dark closets—anywhere—moths will not bother them if they have been mothproofed with Larvex. Larvex puts an end to the annual packing away of woolen things, and the unpacking when the season is over. No more uncertainty. All the bother ended. Ask for Larvex at your drug, furniture, or department store. Pints, $1.75; quarts, $3.15; gallons, $5.25. If your dealer does not carry Larvex, we will send it direct, postage prepaid.

Thousands of retailers are selling clothing, knit goods, blankets, furniture, carpets, rugs, etc., that have been mothproofed by the Larvex process by the manufacturers. Look for the Larvex certificate of guarantee when buying any article subject to moth damage.

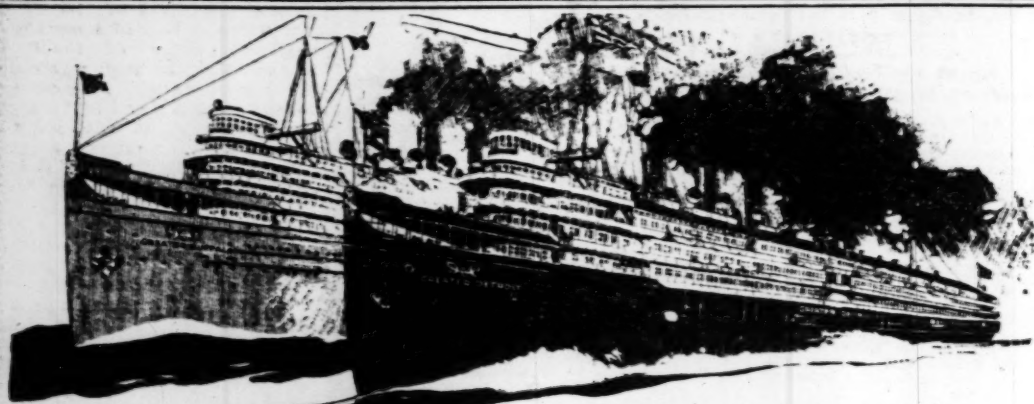

A descriptive illustrated booklet about moth damage and how Larvex prevents it sent free on request.

SCHOOL TAX INCREASED FROM 82 TO 85 CENTS

Tentative Budget Still About $2,225,000 Above Estimated Revenues.

The Board of Education faces a program for the coming year which contemplates expenditures approximately $2,225,000 in advance of estimated revenue, even though the board voted last night to increase the school tax from 82 cents to 85 cents on the $100 valuation and added one mill as a tax for sinking fund purposes.

The situation is not serious, however, in view of the fact that on Jan. 1 last the board had a cash balance of $5,298,553. A balance of $2,000,000 will survive the inroads of the contemplated program at the close of the present year.

Outline of the Budget.

The board approved the program last night after Ben Weidle, chairman of the Committee of Finance, had presented an outline of the tentative budget and estimated income. He said department heads of the system had submitted minimum needs for the year at his request and that the budget thus arrived at totaled $11,447,149. This, he pointed out, did not include $1,250,000 for such items as equipment for the new Roosevelt High School, costing $200,000; the School for Crippled Children, costing $200,000; the School for the Deaf, costing $150,000; School for Deaf-Blind Children, costing $250,000; and $50,000 for an athletic field. The addition of these items raised the contemplated expenditures to $12,697,149.

Weidle said the estimated revenue from an 85-cent tax and other sources of income totaled $10,472,322. This is approximately $2,225,000 more than the income of $8,247,322 derived last year with the 82-cent tax prevailing. The board is empowered to set the tax each year, with 85 cents as a maximum. A sinking fund tax of 2 cents on the $100 valuation is also within the board's levy power.

The sinking fund is used to retire and pay interest on $3,000,000 in bonds issued in 1918.

Secretaryship Still Vacant.

Election of a secretary was deferred last night because of the inability of Arthur A. Blumeyer and Jesse McDonald to attend the meeting. No date has been set for a new conference. Five meetings and nearly 50 ballots taken thus far have failed to break a deadlock existing between Hugh W. McNamee, acting secretary and treasurer; E. M. Brown, Supply Commissioner, and Harry P. Schollmeyer, chief clerk in the Building Department and a brother of L. A. Schollmeyer, a member of the board.

NATIONAL GUARD FLYERS TO MAKE MOSAIC MAP OF CITY

110th Observation Squadron Also to Give Demonstration on July 4.

The 110th Observation Squadron, the St. Louis National Guard Air Unit, will make a mosaic map of St. Louis, according to plans formulated at a meeting of the officers of the unit at the Coronado Hotel last night.

A mosaic map consists of a number of photographs of a given terrain pieced together. The squadron already has the necessary photographic equipment and will begin work as soon as two additional planes, now at Dayton, O., are turned over to the unit. It was also announced at the officers' meeting that an aerial demonstration would be given by the unit at Lambert-St. Louis Field July 4.

Lieut. Herbert H. Teichman of the 110th Squadron, who recently "bombed" Twelfth boulevard with circulars announcing a dance given by the squadron, had a narrow escape last Sunday when a plane he attempted to "ferret" from Moberly, Mo., crashed into a group of trees shortly after the takeoff. The plane, which was demolished, was the property of C. Young, president of a roofing concern here. Young accompanied Lieut. Teichman and both escaped with only minor injuries.

MICROPHONE TAKES PLACE OF INK WELL IN HOUSE WARFARE

Congressman, Attacked by Colleague, Grabs News Transmitter to Protect Himself.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The innocent looking microphone, used in the House to carry the debates to the press room, has replaced the old-time inkwell as a weapon in personal encounters.

Threatened yesterday by Representative Watkins (Dem.) of Oregon, who became infuriated over a difference on the immigration bill, Representative Galling (Dem.) of Massachusetts grabbed the metallic transmitter on the minority leader's table and raised it to clout his adversary, but friends intervened, as they so often do.

Watkins favors the Johnson restrictive bill; Galling opposes it. Representative Hill (Rep.) of Maryland attacked the legislation today, and Watkins interrupted him several times. Galling whistled, under his hand, that Watkins was an opponent and deserved no consideration.

Words followed, and Watkins struck at Galling. Representative Box of Texas took Watkins by the shoulders and pushed him across the hall to his seat.

MEDICIONS MARRIOMAN

By H. W. LAND

ALAS, good husband marriage appears to endow the other.

A man always gives him a lot of moral courage in time of need. A wife at home with her husband.

The only way any man can go inside her husband's mind is by talking to other people. All the average wife knows when he dies that he was a good provider, and liked his eggs boiled three minutes.

Man was made to be a woman's Adam discovered that Eve liked to "suffer" for all his worrying.

Marry a man to get excitement; but the utmost "reform" is a man was to make him "suppress the evidence."

The thrill a woman gets all day without buying anything is the same as a man derives from standing on the corner and watching the girls go past—but you can't take a husband home!

A woman never can be contempt or cowardice that makes her husband shut the door in the middle of a quarrel.

Any woman with a husband enough not to tell her husband what she's going to do it. And any woman with TWO husbands not to tell him even then.

Husbands are like that. They can't CHOOSE them; you can only "hope for the best," and take what Fate happens to send.

A man never forgets unless he happens to marry her.

as a whole. One successful marriage is a community where his wife prevails. Indeed, she had not been known, but she can do more good brings us other calls from that her seed is planted in neighborhood and that is all.

Explaining still another marriage and the service is upon which I had taught Miss Nelson.

The impression that the service is available to the very poor is one of the most important of the public health program.

Financial support was derived from donations, individual fees, and from the St. Louis University Obstetrical Clinic, besides the Community Fund and the insurance company already referred to.

The cost of the work, including all expenses, was $1,888.30 for the year, and at the end of the period a balance of only $7.77 remained in the bank, so it will be seen upon what a narrow margin the work is carried on.

The nurses are all graduates of regulation hospital training schools and of public health courses besides. It is regarded as harder work than private nursing and is by no means so well paid. It would seem that it must appeal necessarily to young women imbued with the altruistic spirit.

IMPROMPTU FEASTS

By Hannah Wing

FOR the after-theater bite or the impromptu bridge party something piquant and tasty and always ready on the pantry shelf is the thing. The grocer's shelves now carry such a large and attractive line of these foods that it requires only a little forethought in keeping up the order list and a little ingenuity in selecting pleasing combinations to be prepared to offer refreshments at a moment's notice.

Among the crackers, tasty cheese tidbits are especially good and become really delicious if toasted a bit. The new packaged pretzels retain their brownness, saltiness and nutty flavor most satisfactorily and go well with chafing dish soup or rarebit, both of which are canned possibilities. A glass of milk these crackers are excellent as a going-to-bed bite.

Ripe olives of a reliable brand are delicious relishes, which new regulations and methods of canning have made perfectly safe and certain.

Several new mayonnaise combinations of olives or relishes make excellent sandwich fillings. These with hot percolated coffee make a quickly prepared type of refreshment.

Besides the many appetizing kinds of fish in oil—sardines and anchovies there are new zesty fish pastes that make a quick spread for hot buttered toast, sardine and boater paste as well as sardines and salmon are among the best known pastes that can be used as a sandwich filling.

The ice chest should always contain a variety of cheeses for hungry occasions. Cream, club, Swiss and Camembert should be included. These with any of the saltiness or soda crackers of the dry, crisp kind are always acceptable and particularly so when coffee accompanies them. Toasting the crackers while the coffee percolates adds joy to the feast.

shows a total of 172,346 visits made to a total of 12,310 patients by a staff of nurses averaging 42 in number. About half the cases were maternity, which included prenatal care and instructions and attendance at deliveries, while almost as many illnesses of other character were attended. A list of 12 classified and individual agencies reported cases.

Financial support was derived from donations, individual fees, and from the St. Louis University Obstetrical Clinic, besides the Community Fund and the insurance company already referred to.

The cost of the work, including all expenses, was $1,888.30 for the year, and at the end of the period a balance of only $7.77 remained in the bank, so it will be seen upon what a narrow margin the work is carried on.

Your Exacting Friends

By Sophie Irene Loeb

A VERY good friend of mine, Miss S., was deploring the fact that so many friends expect or rather presume too much on friendship.

Coming from Miss S., who is one of the most charming and democratic girls I ever knew, this view of the matter was most interesting.

"We were discussing the idea of two friends living together—a young woman and a young man—as many do, especially in the business world. And in such cases one often expects too much of the other."

"It has been my experience," said Miss S., "that when you are with a friend a great deal, or even when she is paying you a visit, she expects you to keep her in mind all the time."

"For instance, if I should be invited out to dinner or to a party and have formed the habit of trying to include her for such an invitation, then she gets disappointed and hurt if the situation is such that I cannot ask her."

"I have one friend, however, who takes just the right attitude when with me for any length of time—that is, she does not depend on my friendship for anything. Even when she is visiting me she does not feel that I must always be looking out for her pleasures and pastimes."

"Many a time I have had to leave her to do things. She has stayed home and read or otherwise amused herself until I returned home."

"I have never heard her utter a word of protest. On the contrary, she is glad I have had the good time, even though she was not a party to it."

"Yes, friends are a great comfort. But there are very few, however, who do not demand more than you can give."

"This friend has the lowliest character and is naturally inclined to be considerate. She has no jealousy in her makeup, and that is why living with her is a pleasure instead of a problem," she concluded.

This is a subject that is frequently thought about but seldom discussed. If the truth were known, many a friendship has been broken up by the seeming inability of many people to keep from infringing on the rights of others.

When the young people live together or visit each other many a heartache will be avoided, and many a strained situation will be saved if both look at matters sensibly.

The finest relationships in the world have been built on one thing—consideration for the other.

Any other basis is like sinking sands of illusion.

It is the same in families. Many letters come to me from seemingly covetous sisters and brothers envious of each other's success socially, outside the home. One girl complained bitterly that her brothers "never took her out," but preferred to take other girls and she remained a stay-at-home.

The truth of the matter is that these brothers found their sister very disagreeable when they escorted her to various places. She was unkind to the other young women with whom these boys danced, and showed a generally unpleasant attitude. And they finally had to discontinue "counting her in."

If she repelled her own brothers, how could she expect to attract other girls' brothers? In a word, she was so exacting that nearly everybody was glad to get away from her.

Then there are the friends who are miserable when you do not invite them to everything you have and insist that they have been slighted. Along with them are the "injured ones" who get cross because you eliminate them when you have certain friends at your house and have tried your best to bring those together that would be congenial.

Such exacting friends have but one cure—absent treatment. (Copyright, 1924.)

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Avoid Steel.—Never use a steel utensil to serve cooked fish, as it is apt to impart a disagreeable flavor to the fish.

Evaporated Milk.—By all means have a few cans of evaporated milk on that "reserve" shelf. There is nothing quite so annoying as to plan a nice creamed dish and find you have not enough milk to carry out your idea. Or maybe you have the biscuits together and suddenly realize you have no fresh milk. The evaporated milk can be diluted and used in practically any emergency where the milk is to be cooked and no one but the cook be the wiser.

Every Day Helps.—A good flashlight is a nice present for an invalid friend. Sprinkle a little salt on the smoky gas mantle and see if it does not improve the light.

White of egg will remove chewing gum from anything, hair included, without leaving a trace. Kerosene should be mixed with the white wash when cleaning the cellar walls as it is a strong germicide.

A tablespoon of borax added to the water when washing colored stockings will remove stains left from shoes.

FASHION FRILLS

A chic veiling store is offering—for wear with the hat—a scarf which is more Spanish shawl than veil. Needless to say, it is draped across the hat instead of the face.

When in doubt, use ribbon. This seems to be the millinery motto in Paris today. Ribbons of all sorts are bedecking hats in loops, ocarades, upstanding bows, ruffles and in braided edgings.

The shorter and stumper the parasol or umbrella, the more smart it is. Indeed, it is a problem just now to tell the parasol from the umbrella, both are so vivid.

Many pleated panels or "aprons" are noticed on gowns of every sort. The pleating is often so very fine as to look like stripes or ribs in the goods.

Once again, in London the lovely flowered brocades are "in." They are not only made into gowns but into cloak linings, wrist bags, hats and bodice upholders.

The girl who likes to hike across country in knickers and giddy wool stockings should try a pair of the brilliant wool tassels that come in a contrasting color. These tassels, fastened on an elastic band, are worn around the knee.

Sammy Jay Sees a Funny Sight

Who silent keeps with watchful eyes, Will get full many a surprise.

—Sammy Jay.

Farmer Brown's Boy yelled just to make him run faster.

NO ONE takes more interest in the affairs of his neighbors than does Sammy Jay. What there is going on in the Green Forest that Sammy Jay doesn't know about is hardly worth knowing about. Sammy gets a lot of fun out of life in watching his neighbors. If you could get Sammy Jay to tell you all he knows about the other people of the Green Forest you would learn a great many interesting things.

But Sammy's interest isn't confined to those who live in the Green Forest. He is quite as much interested in human beings. He never misses a chance to watch Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy. So when Sammy saw Farmer Brown's Boy start out from the sugar house Sammy quietly followed. He did it very quietly. This is always his way. He kept his tongue still. He flew from tree to tree behind Farmer Brown's Boy, near enough to keep the latter in sight, but far enough to run little risk of being seen himself.

He saw Farmer Brown's Boy when the latter found the footprints of one of the little Bears. He chuckled to himself as Farmer Brown's Boy started to follow those footprints. His eyes sparkled. He knew all about those young Bears and what they had been doing. He knew all about the mischief they had been in. He knew, too, that they were no farther away. "I hope those youngsters will not discover that Farmer Brown's Boy is following their footprints, and run away before he can catch up with them," thought Sammy. Then he hurried so as to be nearer Farmer came face to face with a young Bear! It happened that that young Bear had started to go back the way he had come.

It is a question which was the most startled and surprised. For a second or two Farmer Brown's Boy and the young Bear stood perfectly still, staring at each other. Then the young Bear turned like a flash and started to run. Farmer Brown's Boy yelled just to make him run faster. At that yell there was a crash from behind some bushes just as one side of Farmer Brown's Boy, and a second crash from the further edge of those upturned roots. Farmer Brown's Boy yelled again, this time in sheer surprise. Three frightened young Bears started to do the thing they had been taught to do in the time of danger—that is, to climb a tree. And all three chose the same tree. They got in each other's way and all three were bawling. It was such a funny sight that Sammy Jay laughed so that he nearly fell from his perch.

SHRIMP FRITTERS.

Take a large can of shrimps, drain, pick them over and break into small pieces. Make a good plain fritter batter, add the shrimps to it and fry in the usual way. Serve hot in a napkin. Tartar sauce or a good cream sauce is delicious with the fritters.

You wouldn't wash your hands with kitchen soap yet they are exposed to kitchen soap an hour and a half every day in a dishpan

WASH your hands day after day with kitchen soap? Of course you wouldn't think of it.

Yet when you use harsh soap for your dishes your hands are exposed to the ravages of kitchen soap much longer than you spend actually washing them. At least an hour and a half every day your hands are in harsh soap suds in the dishpan!

Don't let your hands suffer any longer. Just toss Lux in your dishpan—Lux is as easy on your hands as on the fine fabrics you always use it for. Even toilet soap is no more soothing to your skin than pure Lux flakes.

Won't chap hands

Harsh soap in your dishpan dries all the beautifying oils of your hands—oils that an all-wise nature carefully secreted just underneath the chaff-thin outer skin. When they are burned out by kitchen soap your hands chap and redden.

Lux helps to keep the supply of these beautifying oils constant. Even if your hands are especially sensitive, these gentle flakes won't roughen or redden them. Lux rid's your hands for good of that in-the-dishpan look.

One teaspoonful for quick, rich suds

It seems incredible that a single teaspoonful of Lux is all you need for a dishpan—but just try it. One teaspoonful for the breakfast or lunch dishes; for the dinner dishes perhaps you'll need two.

Keep a package of Lux handy on your kitchen shelf. There's a big new package now as well as the regular size. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Rid your hands of that in-the-dishpan look

MY GOLD FISH

I BOUGHT a little gold fish,
I call him Aloyceus;
He's quite a strong and bold fish.
Although he isn't vicious.
Around the bowl I watch him whirl
With motive power finny.
But if she proves to be a girl,
I'll change her name to Minnie.

I bought him where they sold fish
In spring and winter time;
Although a solid gold fish,
He cost a dime.
I don't believe he ever sleeps.
Or takes a short vacation,
And that's the way he always keeps
The gold in circulation.

THE LIGHT THAT DID NOT FAIL—By IRVIN S. COBB.

IT WAS a rainy night and a dark one. Under a street lamp at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street a policeman came upon a disheveled and weather-beaten citizen down on his knees pawing about over the asphalt with his hands.
"Hello," said the cop, "what's wrong?"
The man raised a red face and spoke thickly, with hiccougs for punctuation marks:
"Had streak bad luck," he explained. "Lost ten dollar bill."
"Too bad," said the sympathetic officer. "Is this the spot where you first missed it?"
"Oh no," stated the searcher. "I losht it over yonder, Sixth avenue an' Fifty-fifth, one block from here."
"Then why are you looking for it here when you lost it there?"
"Better light at thish corner," said the inebriate, and went on pawing.

BURNS SENT AGENTS TO INVESTIGATE
WHEELER

Chief of Justice Department Secret Service Says He and Daugherty Discussed
Having Senator Indicted
When He Reported
Campbell Was Client.

MILLER TESTIFIES
ABOUT LAND FRAUD

Tells of Hiring Daugherty's
Former Law Partner to Defend Him; Expected a Small Fine, but Was Assessed $7500.

By PAUL V. ANDERSON,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—An admission by William J. Burns that he sent three special agents of the Department of Justice to Montana for the purpose of gathering evidence upon which an indictment of Senator Wheeler might be based, and the added admission by Burns that he and Attorney-General Daugherty had discussed the possibility of having Wheeler indicted, after the Senator had called the present investigation of the Department of Justice, came as a sensational denouement before the Brookhart Committee today.

It was the Department of Justice, which Wheeler is investigating, that caused his indictment.
Daugherty and Burns are the targets for the inquiry. Burns, as director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department, has charge of all the secret service men. He was responsible only to Daugherty, and, as he testified today, they are old friends, having known each other since boyhood.

The political backfire from the disclosure that Burns was behind the Wheeler indictment is expected by Wheeler's friends to be scorching.
Wheeler himself has charged that the indictment was a "frame-up," engineered by Burns' men. Burns testimony today contradicted the public statement previously made by Daugherty, that he knew nothing of the plan to indict Wheeler.
Burns said they discussed it three or four weeks ago.

The raucous with which the detective chief made the disclosure left spectators breathless. He answered questions as calmly as discussing the weather. He was not on the stand five minutes.

A Telephone Conversation.
Wheeler focused attention sharply when he introduced a record of the local telephone company, showing George L. Wood, an official of the Republican National Committee yesterday held a long-distance conversation with Blair Coon, at Great Falls, Mont., where the Wheeler indictment was brought. Wheeler immediately called Burns to the phone and inquired if Coon was one of his men. Burns said he was not but identified him as an employee of the Republican National Committee.

"Do you know that he was sent out to Montana for the purpose of digging up something on me?"
Wheeler asked. "I know he has been out in Montana."

"Isn't it a fact, Mr. Burns, that you sent three Department of Justice men to Montana, and that they presented the evidence to a grand jury on which I was indicted?"
"I don't know what he said before the grand jury, but I know that three men out there," was composed answer.

"Who ordered you to send the men out there?" "Nobody ordered me; I did it myself."

"How did you come to do that?"
"The Postoffice Department called my attention to evidence that had in connection with page 10. I decided to send the men there to investigate it."

"How long ago was this?"
"About three or four weeks ago."
"Did you discuss it with Attorney-General Daugherty?" "I did."
"Where?" "In his apartment
the Wardman Park Inn. We talked it several times. We discussed the report, which one of men made, to the effect that he had acted as attorney for Geo.
Campbell."

"And you discussed the possibility of having me indicted?"
"Yes, sir."

"As a matter of fact, you are discussed on Page 2, February 1935."
